Flanders Mansion eligible for historical list

By NANCY HILLS

FOR THE past 64 years the ivy-covered Flanders Mansion, located in Mission Trail Park, has made it through earthquakes, severe storms, a variety of tenants and that most dangerous threat of all — politics.

Now it is eligible for listing as a national historic structure. It has become a beautiful survivor, but not one without controversy.

What to do with the house, which is in need of some repair before it can be used by the public, has been a source of controversy since the city bought the property in 1972.

In September, the city council settled one aspect of the controversy when it voted to not sell any portion of Mission Trail Park, including the mansion.

But there are still those who advocate tearing it down, since the proposed repairs could be expensive. On the other hand, there are those who believe it should be repaired and some who say it should be left alone.

Since the city has run out of funds for any projects such as rehabilitating Flanders, a state grant could be the only avenue to save the house from deterioration or destruction.

Currently, the city leases a portion of the 4,000-square-foot house as a private residence and a portion to artist John Cunningham for his Carmel Art Institute.

The city council has considered selling the house more than once, the most recent proposals having been made in 1985 to raise money for the possible acquisition of Mission Ranch and again in 1986 to raise money for the purchase of the Crocker Bank building for use as a library annex.

But public outcry and passions for both the building and the park prevented those plans.

Now, it has been recommended by the California Office of Historic Preservation for listing in the National Register of Historic Places and the city is putting together an application for a $535,000 grant to rehabilitate the building.

Once restored, the Carmel Heritage organization has proposed a plan where it would lease the elegant estate and transform it into a headquarters and service center for the city's historical and cultural resources. Negotiations with the city about the lease are currently underway.

Carmel Heritage's plan was recommended by the Mission Trail Park Consortium over proposals to use the house as an "elder hostel" or as a museum for the non-profit Art Asia Museum.

"We wanted something that was more Carmel community oriented and non-commercial," explained consortium chairwoman Pat Sippel. "The Carmel Heritage proposal fit right in to what we were looking for."

THE FUTURE looks better for the mansion than it has for at least the past 16 years.

Local preservationist and historian Enid Sales is working on the grant along with Kent Seavey and architect Roger Larson.

According to Sales, the proposal distributes about one-third of the money to mechanical repairs such as electrical and plumbing; one-third for foundation structural repairs; and one-third to reconstruct the interior.

The exterior must stay the same for the building to qualify as historically significant.

The grant is from a $11 million state bond issue created for the purpose of restoring and rehabilitating historical buildings in parks for public use.

"The main thing about this grant is that it is the first time the state has made a grant like this available," Sales said. "It just so happens to coincide with our plans."

IT WAS, in fact, the last proposal to sell the mansion and an adjoining 3-acre meadow that prompted the recent activity.

The public was galvanized into action when the house was put on the market in late 1986.

The planning commission voted unanimously that it was against the city's general plan to sell the property, petitions were hastily circulated and speakers rose to protest the sale at council meetings.

Faced with such diverse opposition, the former city council formed the Mission Trail Park Consortium to make recommendations on the mansion and park.

A core group of that consortium worked on Flanders Mansion. They included preservationist Sales; Maxine Jennings, chairwoman; Roger Larson, local architect; Russell Gifford, architect; Harriette Rowntree, chairwoman of the Arboretum Committee; Pauline Stanley, from Monterey County Historic Advisory Commission; artist Janis Larson; Robert D'Isidoro, attorney; and Roberta Bialeck.

The city is applying for a $535,000 state grant to rehabilitate the house, which is now eligible to be listed on the National Register of "The first of two things we attacked was that everyone thought it was going to fall down in an earthquake. We got a structural engineer from the state Historic Building Code Board to inspect the property," explained Jennings.

The engineer, John Kariotis, confirmed local architects Larson and Gifford's estimation that the home was structurally superior, and in fact, in better shape than many of the buildings in downtown Carmel.

Additionally, an investigation into its past revealed that the house was designed by a noted California architect, Higby Gutterson. Its unique hollowed wall construction was not only structurally sound but also maintained a constant temperature and range of humidity within the building.

That made it a desirable location for storage of paintings and historical documents.

Making a clear statement of the house's architectural importance, Kariotis stated in his report that "the structural masonry system used for the construction of Flanders Mansion is unique and worthy of retention as a historical record of California buildings."

The consortium then hired architectural historian Sally Woodbridge to develop the architectural historical significance of the building.

Historic Places. It is located in Mission Trail Park off Hatton Road. (Holly McFarland photo.)

In November 1987, the consortium recommended a master plan for Mission Trail Park and asked the council to confirm the planning commission's recommendation.

Rather than vote against selling the house, the council chose to give the consortium a year to settle on a viable use for the mansion.

In that year, the group received a $2,000 grant from the Community Foundation of Monterey County to hire Kent Seavey, a professional architectural historian, who wrote the application to the state Office of Historic Preservation.

Early this month, the state office recommended the house as eligible for listing on the National Register for Architectural Merit.

"I've never known them (the federal register) to reject that recommendation," Sales said.

That recommendation opens the way for the $535,000 state grant application through the California State Park and Recreation Historical Facilities Bond. It makes available applications to other grants.

That application must be made by Dec. 1. The council will review it at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 29 during a special meeting.

Once the application is submitted, Sales said it will be February before the city hears about the grant.

Until then, the Flanders Mansion will wait in the serene manner that it has for 64 years.

Encouraging conservation

Dear Editor:

The 20 percent residential cut proposed under the new ordinance no. 37 is not only unjust but also against the long-term interests of the community.

The cut is unjust because it penalizes people who in the past year, and earlier, have made genuine efforts to conserve water; and it rewards those who have wasted water.

Even worse is the future disincentive effect. When the ordinance's restrictions are relaxed, people who in the past have labored to conserve will be tempted to say "The hell with it!" and build a record of use that will ensure them a bigger ration next time around. That response may not be pretty, but it's human nature.

I suggest that those who agree with me write to all members of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District urging them to abandon the proposed 20 percent cut and impose instead an absolute limit of the kind we had during the last drought — though embodying the proposed 50 percent supplement for those who live alone. Such a step would be just — and would encourage future conservation.

Going too far

Dear Editor:

I wonder if those who support the Carmel City Council's recently passed ordinance prohibiting the rental of homes in Carmel for less than 30 days, ever, in the dim past before settling here, had occasion to rent a home in Carmel for several weeks on a much-needed vacation? An interesting thought, don't you think?

Anyway, to limit rentals to 31 days or more is, it seems to me, unreasonable. A much better way to go would be to prohibit rentals of homes under 14 days. That would stop the nightly, weekend or other rentals under two weeks which appear to be the cause of some trouble in a few neighborhoods.

The rental of a home for two or three weeks, on the other hand, usually means that a family is coming to Carmel for a vacation and the rental of a home makes the once-a-year respite not only possible, but affordable. These are hardly the kinds of people that affect a neighborhood adversely. I know, I speak from experience.

I have lived in Carmel for 23 years, but for 20 or more years before finally settling here, I came every year with my family for a two-week vacation, renting a home each time — and it was grand.

If such an ordinance, which has now been approved, had been the law during that long period before moving here, a delightful part of our lives for so many years would have been lost.

Our mayor has been quoted as saying that a family can stay in a home for two weeks but would have to rent the home for a month. Hardly a solution, I submit, for a young family whose budget could not cover the additional expense.

While I am behind the Carmel City Council's efforts to preserve what brought us all here in the first place, as well as keeping under control the motivation of those who would promote change for their own benefit, the rental of a home in Carmel for two or three weeks has been around since the town was founded and the council has gone too far, in my view, in banning such rentals.

Waiting for water

Dear Editor:

Our community has been debating various water problems and solutions for longer than I have been alive. Growing up here I have observed that there are more delays and red tape than there are proposed solutions. We tend to look at the present situation while past problems are pushed aside until they arise again.

I can remember the last drought. I was 5 years old, and children have trouble with the concept of water. The bathroom was fascinating for me, especially the faucets. How can you teach a child that water won't always fall from a faucet and what is lost upon the bathroom floor cannot be exchanged for what it once was? Even then, the concept eluded me.

So here we are, in the middle of another drought. Ten years have passed: a decade in which we should have progressed beyond our past attitudes and proceeded into a new consciousness. What exactly are we waiting for, besides the rain? If the theories of the world's experts are to be considered, then this "drought" we're having may just be the new weather pattern for our area. Man's newest invention in his effort to progress is the greenhouse effect.

But, then, our country thinks in four-year terms, and droughts and long-term weather patterns aren't included in the political scheme of things. We need to look beyond the present, consider the future, and make some progress in our current water issues.

So what are we waiting for? I think this issue has been around long enough. Let's find a solution and apply it, quickly!

Perpetuating forests

Dear Editor:

Rumors that the Pebble Beach Co. was negotiating a sellout to the Japanese recently served to place the whole issue of land speculation in its proper perspective. It would seem almost treasonous to let the Japanese or any other foreigners enrich themselves by exploiting the few remaining stands of forest in the old Del Monte Forest. If we stop and think about it, it doesn't make much more sense to allow American land speculators to complete the decimation of this once splendid forest so that the name it was given with the intention of permanently designating the area as a forest will become a parody of itself.

BATES

"In L.A. I was a house painter. In Carmel I'm an environmental enhancer."

The American capitalists led by Texan Marvin Davis who presently own the Pebble Beach Co. will probably change the name to something other than "Del Monte Forest" when they complete their proposed 900 more residential developments of specified land parcels, but only if Californians and the residents of Monterey County pay more respect to the Pebble Beach Co.'s property rights than to the preservation of this exceptional forest which we all inherited as our natural rights of citizenship.

The Del Monte Forest properties have been passed from generation to generation, and from land speculator to land speculator, so many times that the original rights of discovery and possession for undeveloped parcels have long since ceased to apply in probity.

Even in the beginning, Samuel F.B. Morse acquired more property here than he had a natural right to, and more than he and his family could effectively occupy and hold. Morse's vast holdings were tolerated because he committed himself to preserving this forest from development, but it's clear that the present Pebble Beach Co. has reneged on that original commitment, already much trespassed against, so the public should no longer respect the Pebble Beach Co.'s property rights. Either the state or county should expropriate the remaining parcels of continuous forest stands in the interests of perpetuating the original commitment to preserve this unique forest land.

Cutting deeper

Dear Editor:

We expect water rationing to begin in January. At the water management district meeting on Nov. 14, a rationing ordinance was proposed based on a 20 percent cut by all of us, businesses and residents. Some felt that golf courses, which are major consumers of water, could cut more than 20 percent without economic hardship, but the water board didn't agree.

What are the facts? The district has evaluated the water needs, or baseline levels, for a variety of activities, and for "Open Space Turf" (golf courses) it has assigned 1.76 acre feet/acre/year. Actual usage by golf courses in Carmel Valley over five years has averaged 3.0 acre feet per year, which is 70 percent more than the standard 1.76. Rancho Canada used 4.38 acre feet per year during one year, which is 149 percent more! It appears that golf courses could save much more than 20 percent of their watering, without undue suffering.

If you agree, write to the MPWMD, 187 Eldorado St., Monterey, before the second reading of the ordinance on Dec. 12.

THIS DRAWING, submitted to the Coastal Commission with Caltrans' new application for the Hatton Canyon Freeway project, shows the varying heights of the freeway.

Current design plans show the road at-grade behind The Barnyard, rising to about 45 feet over the intersection at Rio Road and descending to a new bridge spanning the Carmel River.

Caltrans pushing deadline for coastal agency agenda

By DAVID LELAND

STATE COASTAL Commission planners this week indicated that, despite a rapidly approaching deadline for staff comment, Caltrans' new Hatton Canyon Freeway project application will be processed in time for a December hearing.

The hearing for the $26 million project is tentatively set for 9 a.m. Thursday, Dec. 15 in San Francisco, according to Coastal Commission planner Rick Hyman.

"Right now, we're on schedule, but it's still tight," he said. "I guess, as of this minute, we're committed to getting it done."

Caltrans' new application is "intended to meet the concerns of Coastal Commission staff and Monterey County planning staff," according to David Murray, Caltrans spokesperson.

With that in mind, the design specifically deals with changes south of the Rio Road overpass, including the construction of a new connection between the existing highway at Oliver Road and the new alignment just north of the Carmel River.

A new bridge will be built over the Carmel River and the existing bridge (currently maintained by the county), will be removed.

In addition, the northbound offramp at Rio Road, which was included in the original design, will also be removed.

Caltrans' District Director Tom Pollock said the transportation agency has no plans for further public forum before the December hearing.

In the Addendum Consistency Certification filed by Caltrans Nov. 18, the agency further outlines its reasons for continuing its stance of a road that runs through Hatton Canyon from Carpenter Street and has a major interchange at Carmel Valley Road.

While one proposal to four-lane the existing Highway 1 appears to meet Coastal Commission standards, Caltrans said that this idea is unsafe.

"The fatality rate for a divided freeway is 2.4 fatal accidents for 100 million vehicle miles and 1.2 fatal accidents for a freeway," according to Caltrans. "This represents a doubling of the fatality rate for the expressway verses a freeway alignment."

Caltrans also believes that an at-grade intersection at Carmel Valley Road would "operate at a very poor level of service within a few years."

MOREOVER, AN inverted Carmel Valley Road interchange, which would lower the Highway 1 elevation but raise the elevation of Carmel Valley Road, would have adverse affects.

The inverted interchange would:

- Place ramp traffic closer to adjacent residences.

- Cause Carmel Valley Road to drop rapidly over Highway 1 to conform near Carmel Rancho Boulevard, which results in "unacceptable" sight distance.

- It would be difficult to reroute traffic during construction.

- Highway signs and traffic signals would be above the roadways in the inverted plan. These features would add "objectionable" aesthetic features.

Caltrans also provides arguments against a proposed at-grade, signalized intersection at Rio Road and Highway 1.

Essentially, Caltrans said, traffic snarls, which sometimes backup northbound cars well south of the Carmel River, would be replaced by backups travelling southbound.

"Southbound traffic on Highway 1 would be stopped and backed up by the signal on Rio Road," Caltrans said. "This situation would be combined with traffic coming downgrade from a freeway section, southbound ramp traffic accelerating to merge with the main lanes, and lane changes by both main lanes and on-going traffic — all in 1,000 feet (the distance between Carmel Valley Road and Rio Road), or less."

Ridding schools of asbestos a top priority at CUSD

By DAVID LELAND

DESPITE THE fact that asbestos levels in the Carmel Unified School District are well below federal standards, officials there have vowed to rid the school system of the potentially deadly mineral.

Found in cement products, acoustical plaster, fireproofing, wallboard, ceiling tiles, vinyl floor tile and thermal insulation, potential asbestos danger is particularly high at Captain Cooper School, Carmel Middle School and some areas of Carmel High School, according to Vance Baldwin, assistant CUSD superintendent.

"The asbestos in the classrooms has not been disturbed and is not in the air," said Baldwin, adding that asbestos cannot be absorbed through the skin and can only cause harm when breathed. "(But) there is potential danger if it is disturbed."

Baldwin added that there is about 150,000 square feet of blown-on acoustical ceiling in the CUSD, which contains between 3 and 5 percent asbestos-laden material.

And while Baldwin said that there are no known cases of children who have become sick as the result of being exposed to asbestos in the classroom, young people are extremely susceptible.

"Some experts would argue that we don't need to eliminate asbestos (in CUSD)," said Baldwin, adding that it can take as long as 20 years until a person becomes sick. "But the (CUSD) board's goal is to remove the problem."

There are four suggested ways in dealing with asbestos material, said Baldwin, who is the CUSD's "designated person" to stay abreast of state and federal regulations and to help come up with a plan for dealing with the asbestos situation.

These are:

- Identify where the asbestos is located and have it removed by a specialized contractor.

- Encapsulate the asbestos by spraying it, which binds together the tiny particles.

- Enclose the asbestos area by nailing safe material over it, which traps the particles underneath.

- Monitor and survey the potential hazards, which is what the CUSD has been doing for several years.

When levels rise too high, such as in the music room at the middle school (five years ago), or the restroom at Captain Cooper (two years ago), workmen are called in to remove the asbestos.

BUT ELIMINATING all the asbestos material in the district presents a logistical nightmare and an expensive proposition, Baldwin said.

Thus far, Baldwin said, the district has received bids ranging from $4 a square foot to $20 a square foot for asbestos removal.

Those figures translate into a range of $600,000 to $3 million.

Baldwin blamed new federal and state requirements regulating asbestos cleanup, for the large discrepancy between bidders.

"It's because of the turmoil in the marketplace," he said, adding that insurance costs for the removers has soared and special toxic dump sites must be used.

Last summer a small area at Carmel River School had asbestos removed, with the material being transported to Redding for dumping.

On a smaller scale, the district has authorized $20,000 worth of asbestos clean-up in non-classroom areas before next September. That money will come from the district's general fund, Baldwin said.

But for the larger cleansing project the district has run into bureaucratic red tape with the state Asbestos Abatement Fund, which could help defray costs of asbestos removal.

After hiring San Francisco-based industrial hygienist Tom Walker, Baldwin said the district first applied in July of 1986 for funding and soon received a letter from the agency saying the CUSD's problem was not serious enough.

Hows and whys of asbestos

MINED FROM the ground in the same fashion as other minerals such as iron, lead or copper, asbestos fibers have been used in insulation since 1870.

Primarily used on the steam pipes and boilers of ships from the turn of the century through World War II, after the war asbestos became widely used in fireproofing buildings.

Some estimates indicate that more than half of the multistory buildings in the country constructed between 1950-70 contain some form of sprayed-on asbestos material.

Asbestos use in the United States did not begin to decline until the 1973-78 Environmental Protection Agency's ban on spray-applied materials.

EPA surveys show that 31,000 schools and 773,000 federal and commercial buildings contain asbestos in some form.

Asbestos is termed in two ways: friable (sprayed- or trowled-on materials that can be crumbled or pulverized by hand pressure), and nonfriable (material such as floor tiles that are too hard to pulverize).

Friable materials are more likely than nonfriable materials to release fibers when disturbed or damaged.

Although nonfriable asbestos material is of less concern, it should not be ignored. Fibers will be released if nonfriable material is cut, drilled, sanded or broken during repairs or renovation.

Exposure (such as spraying insulation in the confines of a ship), to levels of airborne asbestos has been linked with asbestosis, a debilitating lung disease; mesothelioma, a rare cancer of the chest and abdominal lining; and lung, esophagus, colon and other organ cancers.

Levels of airborne asbestos in buildings may be 10 to 100 times higher than outdoor levels. However, these indoor levels are typically 10,000 to 100,000 times lower than levels in asbestos industry work places.

According to one study, only a small proportion of people exposed to low levels of asbestos will develop asbestos-related diseases.

But the same study suggests that asbestos exposure to children is of special concern; since they have a greater remaining lifespan than adults, their lifetime risk of developing mesothelioma is greater.

Asbestos priority

assist the district in asbestos removal.

One thing is for sure, however, Baldwin's problems are not over even if he does secure funding.

"They will not pay 100 percent of the cost," he said.

He added that in order to come up with a final figure of assistance, the district must employ a project manager to oversee the work and receive bids. After that is completed the proposal can go back to the state agency.

Baldwin said he is hoping that a parcel tax, planned for a special election next March, will solve his problems.

If passed, the parcel tax would levy a year-long sum on each property owner and raise a substantial amount for the district. That money would be used solely for maintenance work.

"The parcel tax will help us to remove all the asbestos in making up the difference (between the district and the state)," he said.

Logistically, asbestos removal presents the task of clearing classrooms of any materials, which Baldwin said would have to be done during the summer months.

He added that it would probably take several years to complete the task, which would be "phased."

Another financial problem arises with the removal of asbestos — there needs to be something to replace the bare ceilings.

"I have no idea (where that money will come from)," Baldwin said. "We're in the process of planning — I'm assuming we will have to do this in steps."

Community in mourning after death of Jim Kohnke

CARMEL AREA residents this week mourned the death of Tularcitos School Principal Jim Kohnke, who died Saturday, Nov. 19. He was 49.

Kohnke had been recovering from gall bladder surgery at San Francisco Medical Center when post-surgery complications apparently resulted in his death.

The former Carmel Valley resident is survived by his wife Darlene; and four children, Thomas, Christina, Joseph and Elizabeth.

STUDENTS AND faculty at Tularcitos School are mourning the death of principal Jim Kohnke this week, who died on Saturday, Nov. 19.

"He was a quiet, gentle, caring person — he will be missed by the staff and the community," said CUSD Assistant Supt. Vance Baldwin. "Jim was the perennial student; he continued to study, read and enjoyed good music."

"He enjoyed dialogue with students and colleagues about their interests and why things are the way they are."

Born in San Francisco on Sept. 15, 1939, Kohnke grew up in the Bay Area and received a bachelor or arts degree in German from Arizona State University in 1963, with a minor in Latin and history.

He later received a master's degree in education from San Jose State University in 1982.

Kohnke began his teaching career at All Saints' School in Carmel Valley, where he taught from 1965-77.

He was hired by the Carmel Unified School District in 1977 and began teaching at Carmel Valley High School, where he also worked as teacher/principal in 1979.

Kohnke was appointed principal at Tularcitos in 1983.

Baldwin said that the school district is currently working closely with Tularcitos students in an effort to help them work through their grief.

Burial is scheduled for later in the week in Cypress Lawn Cemetery in Colma, with Mission Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

Contributions toward the education of Kohnke's children may be sent to the Jim Kohnke Memorial Fund, which is being supervised by Dee Adolph at the Bank of America, Carmel branch, P.O. Box 300, Carmel 93921.

The staff at Tularcitos School has also set up a memorial fund for the school library in Kohnke's name that will fund children's classical literature and poetry.

Thank You!

Hayward Lumber Company of Carmel wants to thank you for your wonderful support over the past 8 years. You are a pleasure to serve.

On November 30th Hayward Lumber on 3rd and Torres will be relocating so that a beautiful park can be built in our place.

Don't worry.

Our location may change, but our commitment to you to supply premium quality building material and custom service will not change. Relocating just means we will do things a bit differently.

To keep the same great Hayward staff "just up the street," we will open a sales office in the Carmel area. This means someone will always be close by to answer questions and order material.

To ensure the same timely deliveries of the premium quality materials you have come to count on from Hayward Carmel, we are moving our entire lumber yard to a newly-developed corner of our Salinas lumber yard. We will have no increase in price due to relocation. Also, moving to our largest facility means more products and milling capabilities will be immediately available to you.

O.K., so what happens when you need to run up the street to grab a few 2x4's or a sheet of plywood? Our yard won't be up the street, but Hayward Carmel won't ever be more than a phone call away. Our trucks are in the Carmel area 3 to 4 times a day. A simple phone call from you, using the same number you've always used, and the material you need can be delivered to your job by the same great drivers just a few hours later.

Finally, when it just won't do to have it delivered, our Pacific Grove lumber yard on Sunset and Crocker will be there to help you.

Hayward Lumber Carmel may be moving, but we will always be there to serve you.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Right to silence

THE CONSERVATIVE Party of Margaret Thatcher, which dominates the British Parliament, is about to abolish the centuries-old right to silence in criminal prosecutions in Northern Ireland. The abolition of the privilege will then follow in England and Wales. The right will disappear because it is complicating the British government's prosecution of suspected terrorists of the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

It is often popular to abandon civil rights when frustrated by criminal or political factions who use those very rights to thwart the state's attempts to implement justice. The danger in such abandonment is that we may cross the line which separates us from the terrorist and, in the process, become indistinguishable from those we seek to punish.

Americans are familiar with the name "Miranda," if only from the police shows on television. Ernesto Miranda was a Mexican immigrant with a limited knowledge of the English language who in 1964 was arrested in Arizona as a suspect in the kidnapping and rape of an 18-year-old woman. For two hours, he was interrogated in seclusion by police and confessed. He was sentenced to 20 years in prison. From the time he was arrested, he was never advised that he could remain silent until he spoke with an attorney, nor even that he had a right to have an attorney present during questioning.

Questions were raised about the conditions under which he was interrogated and as to whether or not his confession was coerced.

His court-appointed attorney appealed his conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court on the grounds that Miranda's rights had been violated under the Fifth and Sixth Amendments to the Constitution. The court overturned his conviction and instituted the Miranda Rule resulting in the card now carried by police and read to suspects at the time of their arrest. This reading informs each person of their rights under the Constitution, which include the right not to incriminate oneself, i.e., to remain silent.

Even in the United States the rule has its critics though, strangely enough, not the police who generally claim to have no problem with it. The area of greatest debate, and the one most likely to be the impetus for some modification of the rule, occurs when a suspect confesses to a crime before an officer has had an opportunity to read him his rights. "Surprise" confessions have been disallowed by courts in most cases, forcing the prosecutor to base his case on hard evidence that may be difficult to obtain.

The substance of the argument to disallow voluntary confessions, sometimes made even before an arrest, is contained in the wording of the Fifth Amendment, "No person shall be...compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself..." It is suggested that a voluntary confession is acceptable so long as the suspect was not compelled to make it, i.e., coerced. The question in opposition is whether or not the hostile atmosphere of an arrest and interrogation is not by its very nature coercion, and whether the authorities might improperly use such a rule change to dupe a less sophisticated suspect into an admission of guilt in violation of his constitutional protections.

Because some confessions have been made by emotionally unstable, but otherwise innocent people, or by people exhausted and intimidated by non-stop interrogation lasting several hours, defense attorneys prefer prosecutors to rely on hard evidence of a suspect's guilt. To date, so have most courts.

While some modification of the Miranda Rule is likely to occur, nothing so drastic as what is occurring in Great Britain is conceivable under the U.S. Constitution. One reason the IRA receives the support it does is the perception by Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland that British justice is biased. That stems in part from the fact that terrorist trials in the North are conducted without juries. The removal of what has been for centuries a fundamental right for all British subjects, the right to remain silent, will do nothing to alleviate those suspicions.

The Protestants of Northern Ireland, who number some 600,000 on an island with approximately 4 million Roman Catholics, are a society with privileged economic connections to Great Britain, connections which include job preference, tax subsidies and guaranteed markets for their goods. Their tiny corner of the island exists as a result of attempts by Queen Elizabeth I to subdue the unruly Irish by taking land from Irish Catholics and giving it to Scotch Protestants who were willing to immigrate there in the 16th Century.

The answer to ending the evil of IRA terrorism is to provide equal economic opportunity for Catholics and Protestants in Northern Ireland, not the elimination of civil rights. The removal of such protections has adverse consequences for everyone, not just terrorists.

Sir Thomas More's words are, perhaps, most appropriate here. "This country is planted thick with laws like trees. If you would cut down the laws to get at the devil, where would you hide when he turned 'round upon you? I would give even the devil the benefit of law for my own safety's sake."

Happy Thanksgiving.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day. Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

Private views eliminated from design review code

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission unanimously voted to eliminate references to solar rights, privacy and private views from the residential design review code as part of their discussions on changes to the code.

On Nov. 16, the commission began its review and revision of the residential code as outlined by the city council in 14 separate motions.

The commission's discussion went about halfway through the issues; it will continue the review either late in December or after the first of the year. The commission will forward its recommendations to the city council once they are completed.

The deletion in the code of the consideration of a neighbor's solar rights, private views, privacy and a caution not to allow new construction to "box in" adjoining homes, was to keep the ordinance consistent with the city's general plan.

The code stated that the planning commission should consider those four issues during its design review of new homes. Other issues the code states the commission should consider — such as to avoid bulkiness, mass and incompatibility with the neighborhood — were retained.

Those issues were removed from the plan during its most recent revision.

Planning commission chairman Olof Dahlstrand argued that it is unfair to restrict an owner from building a home as he or she wishes on the basis it might restrict the views of another. Whose rights were more important became a very sticky problem, he said.

As for solar rights, Dahlstrand said, that is "a dubious issue and might be moot point here in Carmel where the sun shines so little."

Carmel resident Barbara Brooks disagreed with his stance.

While no one should not be stopped from building their home because of their neighbor's view, Brooks said, a reference to consider others views should be left in the code.

"It seems unreasonable not to have it a point of discussion," she said.

Solar rights should also be considered, Brooks said, because the lack of sunlight keeps new upper canopy trees from growing.

Other communities were taking solar rights more and more into consideration, she added.

All the points the commission was eliminating from the code, Brooks said, were considerations that are important to the character of Carmel.

"To my mind, they are valued aspects of the village," Brooks said.

Carmel resident Marjory Lloyd also opposed the deletion of solar rights from the code.

Lloyd said she had a friend whose home was put completely in shadow by the construction of another house, which so destroyed the atmosphere of the home that she "had to leave her Carmel home, much to her sorrow."

Lloyd added that she, too, believed other communities take solar rights into consideration.

Lloyd also asked that the commission consider protecting the privacy of the neighboring homes, particularly from second-story decks.

IN ADDITION to the four design review issues, the commission discussed its stance on:

- Setbacks — the commissioners expressed the opinion that second floors should have greater setbacks than first floors and suggested that a formula similar to the new commercial district second story code be developed.

The commercial code states that the distribution of the second floor can be variable, but the total footage of the setbacks must average a designated percentage of the building site.

The commission also determined that "overhangs" should be restricted.

- First floor setbacks — the commissioners agreed on flexible setbacks similar to those for second stories. The commission wants to control or eliminate the boxy massive effect that straight lines produce.

Currently, the code permits 3-foot side yard setbacks from the front of the home to the back. With flexible "accumulated" setbacks that must average a still undetermined number of feet, the straight line can be broken up.

- Upper canopy trees — all design review should go before the city forestry commission. That decision is to address the number of trees that are cut down to accommodate new construction and lack of open space to grow new upper canopy trees.

- Floor area ratio — the commission decided to investigate changes to the floor area ratio, or the percentage of floor space allowed on a building site. Now the code allows the total floor area of a home to be 45 percent of the lot size.

However, the commission was concerned that decks and other outdoor surfaces were not included in the floor area and requested that the staff investigate.

- Large homes on large lots — the commission considered a "sliding scale" for the permitted floor area.

The commission is considering a reduction of 2 percent in the allowed floor area percentage for every 1,000 square feet over 4,000 square feet of a lot.

For example, a new home could have floor area that is 43 percent on a 5,000-square-foot lot. On a 4,000-square-foot lot, the code allows 45 percent.

The purpose of a sliding scale is to prevent huge houses that completely fill larger lots.

Council to consider goals on Nov. 29

THE CARMEL City Council will conduct a special meeting at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Nov. 29 in Carmel City Council Chambers to consider special goals and target issues and capital improvements for 1988.

Planning commission to review Bennett property homes

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will conduct a design review of about five homes for the Louise Bennett property and changes to the drainage canal.

The property was a subject of controversy when the development was first proposed.

Also on the agenda is a request to install an emergency antenna from the Red Cross on Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue.

Student government day a success

ABOUT 80 students and city staff participated in Student Government Day on Tuesday, Nov. 15, with students playing the part of the city council and accompanying staff members during the afternoon.

Carmel High School Activities Director Michael Gunderson characterized the day as very successful and the students felt very good about their experience.

"I can't say enough about the city staff and how good they made the students feel," Gunderson said.

The students are all ready to do it again, he said.

All the students who participated were elected officers of the student council and classes. Associated Student Body President Cindy Nishiguchi took the part of mayor for a day.

BUY Peninsula FIRST

Gently worn bargains

WHAT CAN I say? It's in my blood — along with about two billion other women, one of my favorite pastimes is bargain hunting. But since the nearest Pick N Save is in Salinas, I had to find closer hunting grounds. I personally need a shopping "fix" at approximately two-week intervals, and have found that stores and shops featuring "gently worn" merchandise provide the best shop-until-you-drop bargain-hunting fixes.

Luckily, there are many available that fulfill my needs, and below is a (by no means complete), guide to some of the peninsula's hot spots. (*) indicates the ones I've personally visited and, no doubt, at which I've made purchases:

Children's Clothing & Merchandise:

Kids Exchange, 542 Lighthouse, Monterey.

Children Etc., 215 Grand Ave., Pacific Grove.

Furniture:

*Patrick's Resale Outlet, 105 Central Ave., PG. (I've spent many a Sunday afternoon browsing here.)

Schumann's Economy Used Furniture, 767 Broadway, Seaside.

Variety (Clothing, furniture, bric-a-brac, appliances, etc.):

*SPCA Benefit Shops: 1 Delfino Place, Carmel Valley; Dolores & Fifth, Carmel; and 216 Forest Ave., PG.

*Animal Welfare Benefit Shop, 212 17th St., PG (across from Fandango).

*Church Mouse, corner of Lighthouse & 17th, PG.

American Cancer Society Discovery Shop, 184 Country Club Gate, PG.

*Goodwill Retail Store, 729 Broadway, Seaside.

Women's Apparel:

*Nice Twice, corner of Calle Principal and Franklin, Monterey.

*Monterey Resale Shop, 405 Calle Principal, Monterey.

*Labels, Grand Central Station, 157 Grand Ave., PG.

LABELS IS my most recent discovery, aptly named to describe the designer labels found there. I've spent untold hours trying on a substantial amount of owner Grace Ashby's inventory, consisting of new and gently worn American and European designer apparel. Labels also carries furs, jewelry, shoes, handbags and accessories. I've rarely left without making a purchase — how could I resist Liz Claiborne pumps for $25, a pure silk designer dress for $40 or a pure wool career suit for $52?!

And hey! With Christmas looming on the horizon, consider a Labels gift certificate for the significant women in your life (hope my husband is reading this column, and if so, hope he can explain just who these other significant women in his life are).

By the way, if you're worried about feeling guilty for going on a shopping binge, don't. After all, most of the shops mentioned have charitable purposes, so your patronage contributes to very worthy causes. The remainder are small businesses who truly appreciate that you "Buy Peninsula First."

Correction: The zip code for Leslie's Creations (who was mentioned in the last column), is 93922.

(This bi-weekly column is a service of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, "Buy Peninsula First" campaign, a joint project of the Economic Development Committee and the Small Business Committee. Readers are invited to submit their thoughts and suggestions in writing to "Buy Peninsula First," c/o the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 1770, Monterey, CA 93940.)

DOORS OF NEW THEATER TO OPEN

A crash of cymbals will start the Thanksgiving festival celebrating the new Arts and Crafts Theater on next Wednesday evening. This festival will be closed with a dance after the last performance of "Doubling in Brass" Saturday evening, December 1, to the jazz music of Frederick Preston Search's orchestra in the old Arts and Crafts building.

The executive committee of the Arts and Crafts Club thought it most fitting that the opening of the new little theater, one of the most important events that has ever happened in the dramatic life of Carmel, should be celebrated in a suitable manner, and so four evenings of entertainment were arranged.

HERON IN REBUFF TO HITLER APROPOS OF BUND ACTIVITY

American Bund activities and the oppression of minorities in Germany were the occasion of a declaration by Mayor Herbert Heron at Monday evening's council meeting when he asked the city to send the President a letter as follows:

"The city council of Carmel-by-the-Sea, California joins the rest of the decent world in expressing its horror at the actions of the German dictatorship, its sympathy with the oppressed and maltreated peoples, and its definite approval of your stand in this cruel situation.

"Should you deem it right to take further moves to counteract the Nazi barbarities, you can be assured of the same whole-hearted support."

EDITORIAL

There are no words that this paper could possibly print which could ever in any way assuage the grief of the world on the great loss it has suffered.

John Fitzgerald Kennedy was, as was shockingly demonstrated last Friday, mortal. No matter how remote he had formerly seemed, and regardless of how much one had disagreed with his philosophy, his loss was a personal tragedy to every person on this earth.

As the television screen followed the sad procession last Monday, it played the somber faces of the leaders of virtually every nation on earth, brought together in their common grief. What greater evidence could we have of the universality of man?

Perhaps on this Thanksgiving Day, nearly a week after the tragic acts which occurred in Dallas, we may assert a silent gratitude that the insane act of that deranged little man in Texas has at least made clear to a world formerly occupied with hydrogen bombs and anticipation of global warfare, that all men on this earth are indeed brothers.

There is hope for mankind if we will recognize this simple fact.

REALTORS RAIL AGAINST CARMEL DESIGN REVIEW PLAN

City-imposed design review on new houses would make Carmel a city where new buildings look alike, real estate agents told the Carmel Planning Commission last week. The commissioners who favor design review denied that, but they were unable to explain the need for city review of residential architecture.

TRAIL EASEMENT IN CARMEL RIVER POSES PROBLEM

Horses and hikers may hit a roadblock when they try to enter Garland Ranch Regional Park from the east.

In fact, the Carmel River already serves as a natural barrier if horseback riders and hikers are to follow the trail easement drawn up by a mapmaker in 1975.

That easement would lead cowboys and naturalists 1,500 feet down the middle of the Carmel River. Folks have tried it and report a pristine view, although the going is a bit wet.

Resolution of the problem could result in a distinct network of trails around Garland Ranch Park that would be managed and maintained by the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District.

But the politics of land use promise to further entangle a bureaucratic process already so convoluted it requires enough paperwork to pave a horse trail.

Year-end rush

THE YEAR'S end is fast approaching. In five short weeks (plus two days), we will bid goodbye to 1988. Can Christmas be far away? But first, we wish all of our wonderful readers a Happy Thanksgiving.

In less than a week the second big holiday season begins, so get your pencil poised over your calendar for the December social rush. First, Festival of Trees Preview Gala Party on Nov. 30. The public is invited Dec. 1-4 to come out to the Monterey Room of the fairgrounds to be dazzled by 30 custom-decorated trees before they are delivered to the owners. This is truly one of the area's most spectacular eye-pleasers. But, no wonder, with volunteers spending the whole year giving their considerable talents for this project to raise money for the MP Museum of Art.

On Dec. 2, the Sixth Annual Holiday Auction/Dinner for the Boy Scouts will be held at the Monterey Sheraton. Major items are: swim spa (with heater, pump, filter), 20-foot racing sailboat with two sets of sails, a 22-foot Catalina sailboat and trailer, fur coats, toys, a 1989 Ford Mustang, and, as the King of Siam said, "Etc., etc., etc."

You may help the Boy Scouts "be prepared" by dining, bidding and dancing to High Tide. However, RSVP by Nov. 25 (that's tomorrow, folks), $60 per. You may wish to take advantage of a special very low room rate at the Sheraton with half of it returned to the scouts.

Or, you can start your holiday family fun by going to opening night of You're A Good Man Charlie Brown by Charles "Peanuts" Schulz at the New Wharf Theatre on Dec. 2. Theater tickets are also great gift ideas for your favorite nieces and nephews. The show runs weekends through Jan. 15 with Sunday matinees.

The following day (Dec. 3), "The Doll's Tea Party" is always fun. You'll find boutique gifts, teddy bears, tea treats and many dolls for sale at the First Presbyterian Church, Monterey noon to 3 p.m. Benefits the Salvation Army Day Care Center, Latchkey Program and Senior Citizens Center.

Have you received your invitation to "The Crystal Ball for Hospice?" They are stunning! Uncle Sam needed 45¢ to bring the original missive in silver/white/black and engraved in silver. Ladies will be gowned in white, silver or black and gentlemen in white or black tie or full military attire as they arrive at the Monterey Conference Center the first Saturday evening in December. The Serra Ballroom will be turned into a 19th Century Viennese fantasyland with 100 white Christmas trees each with 100 lights to be given away as door prizes.

Mrs. F. Lee Early, Jr. and Mr. James M. Josoff (co-chairs), promise you an evening you won't forget as you dance to Strauss waltzes and see command performances of ballet, opera and two choirs. Ben Goldman will sing Chanukah songs as he lights the Menorah candle.

Austrian Royalty have agreed to be honorary co-chairpersons and, hopefully, the Archduke and Archduchess Geza von Habsburg will attend. All this — and more — is a benefit for the Patient Care Fund of Hospice, at $125.

When you go up to what some people call 'the city' (SF) be sure to see Gump's holiday windows. They made such a hit last year, that by unprecedented groundswell of popular demand, they are doing them again this season. Tomorrow they unveil the Holiday Adoption Cruise featuring adoptable canines and felines amidst legendary splendor aboard The Royal Barque. A ship inhabited by whimsical animal characters robed in vintage finery of the Gatsbyesque days gone by. All are from the SF/SPCA. Imagine telling friends at a party, "I got my cat at Gump's."

HOWEVER, CHRISTMAS is not here just yet, so, let's catch up on the popular happenings this past (and last) weekend before Thanksgiving.

Buying The Best — Carmel/Pebble Beach Edition '89 was launched at a party given by publishers Bill Brown and Marie Wilson.

The four-color book is even more beautiful than the first edition last year and was right at home in the artistic setting of the party — the Carmel Art Association Galleries. The book profiles area talents such as Doris Day, Hank Ketcham, Randy Reinstedt, John Gardiner and leading artists. It is just in time for holiday shopping and it will be available at the Carmel Pine Cone and local bookstores on Dec. 1. Will make a nice stocking stuffer.

Seen sampling Ventana and Chateau Julien wines were Jane Goode and Judi Moylan of Perth, West Australia, who was a partner with Marie Wilson in the first venture of Buying the Best produced in Australia in 1986.

APROPOS TO the Thanksgiving season the Quota Club of Monterey/Pacific Grove gave thanks to Mrs. Deanna R. Adolph of Carmel for her contributions of talent and time so generously given to civic and philanthropic work.

A gala testimonial dinner was given at the Monterey Beach Hotel to pay tribute to this community-oriented banking executive and business owner as she became the 30th Quota Club "Woman of the Year."

ARTIST MIGUEL Dominguez (left), of Carmel with Mr. and Mrs. Wah Ming Chang, members of the Carmel Art Association, at Buying the Best party.

GARY MOREIRA (left), of The Crossroads shopping center, joined John and Debbie Tiernan and Rita Lewis at CAA gallery for Buying the Best.

KAREN PAIN and Hans Munck, owner of Your Maitre d' limousine and catering service, admired an Emile Norman sculpture.

AMY C. STOLEY and Kamil Azizov of Victoria, B.C., congratulated Marie Wilson on the newest issue of Buying the Best.

Nancy Blaisdel (dinner chairwoman), gave the history of Quota, which includes the program "Shatter Silence" to aid the hearing impaired, and introduced past Women of the Year. Attending were Jean Thomas '68, Kitty Ragsdale '76, Virginia Stanton '77, Marion Robotti '80, Nadine Annand '85, Edith Alt '86 and Vera Hering '71. Outstanding women have received this honor for the past 30 years with the exception of one year.

Arnold Green was the genial master of ceremonies and speaking briefly were Sherrie McCullough, Lee Chamberlin, Jack Holt and Gary Cooke. Monica Haisch presented a Memory Book to the guest of honor and Donna Rico gave her a gift from the Quota Club.

The plaque from the City of Monterey, presented by Mayor Dan Albert, read (partially), "Deanna is the best thing that has happened to the Monterey Peninsula."

AJ Adolph said (with pride and humor), "I'm known to everybody as 'Dee's husband.' Congratulations to Dee and "the man who made it all possible."

SATURDAY NOON proved to be the perfect time and the perfect day at Highlands Inn for "Luncheon with Miss Manners" presented by Monterey Vineyards and The Writers' Jamboree. The three dozen guests (at $100 per), were on their best behavior.

Highlands Inn's new executive chef Brian Whitmer presented the perfect menu: Double Consomme, Tartelette of Wild Mushrooms, Scottish Pheasant Grilled with Lentils and Cabernet Sauce, and Gratinee of Fresh Raspberries. Monterey Vineyard's Cary Gott presented the perfect premium wines: Mumm Cuvee Napa Champagne (to start the bubbling festivity), Sandeman Character Oloroso Sherry, Sterling Vineyards 1986 Chardonnay (Napa), Monterey Vineyard '86 Classic Cabernet, and the perfect finish with Sandeman Founder's Reserve Port.

Miss Manners is really Judith Martin, a native of our perfectly beautiful nation capital. She was able to talk "Washingtonian talk" with another native, Nathalie Cole-Johnson and to reminisce with her childhood friend, Carla Selby (now of Boulder, Colo.), sister of Vic Selby of Pacific Grove.

Thank goodness, Miss Martin broke the tenseness of the "perfect behavior" with a delightful sense of humor as she spoke of good manners toward writers. The guests relaxed as they laughed. We learned that most of her mail comes from those in their late teens and early 20s whose parents told them to "be natural" and now they want and need a set of rules for guidance.

She spoke of the symbolic value of clothing and during the question-and-answer session one man pressed for an answer to, "Should one look when in a nudist colony?" Her answer, "Yes, but look discreetly."

She is tired of discussing food, how it is prepared, and what one can or cannot eat. And, no, you may not pick up a bone and chew on it except at informal picnics. To "What do you do when guests stay too long?" she replied, "I had a friend who use to rise, bring the guests' wraps and say, 'that naughty clock is driving my guests away.'"

Cary was a refreshingly light-hearted emcee and when Chef Whitmer did not come out for a bow, Miss Martin interjected, "It is a custom to send a card to the chef when you have had an outstanding meal." She brought out her card.

Among other events, it was a literary weekend, and how refreshing to see stacks of books on tables instead of stacks of wine glasses and food. The La Playa Hotel was the setting for seminars on writing with a panel of local editors for the Central Coast market and for the California market reps from LA, Santa Barbara and San Francisco.

"How to Get Happily Published" brought speakers from New York and D.C. along with local author Ray Mungo. For "The National Book Market" speakers came from the SF Chronicle, USA Today, New York Times, and George Warren (Bantam Books author from Pacific Grove).

Literary agents to NY and CA publishers, Michael Larsen and Elizabeth Pomada came from SF and for the Wine Writers' Workshop, Rod Smith of the SF Chronicle joined local writer Joe Tarantino. Madeline DiMaggio returned for the Screenwriters' Workshop along with Alan Marcus. The Mystery and Crime Writers' Workshop was given by Robert Campbell and Robert Irvine of Carmel.

On Saturday evening even non-writers were welcome to the

TOASTING THE Third Annual Writers' Jamboree were (left to right), Gabriela Knubis, Julie Ann Kodemun (of The Monterey Vineyard), Robert Yamaguchi (co-founder of the Writers' Jamboree), and Ellen Weiner (board member), at lunch for Miss Manners.

STUART MILLER of Berkeley, Nancy Mayer of Carmel Highlands and Shayna Selby of PG were attracted to a sunny balcony at lunch for Miss Manners at Highlands Inn.

TWO PEOPLE who know something about good manners, Judith "Miss Manners" Martin, and the peninsula's own "Hostess with the Mostest," Artie Early.

HAZEL FREITAS (seated at left), joined four past winners of Woman of the Year award, Vera Hering (next to her), Virginia Stanton, Nadine Annand and Kitty Ragsdale.

"Spies vs. Counterspies Ball" in the Monterey Plaza Hotel. And just prior to the ball, Cal Rossi, Jr. thoughtfully gave a private reception for seminar and workshop speakers. It was the only time they had to relax, renew acquaintances and let their hair down during the busy literary weekend.

The welcome social respite ended with an invitation to go next door and join in the party where a cast directed by Chuck Thurman acted out a mystery plot to be solved by guests.

In the near future, we can expect to see our many talented writers' names on the bestseller lists.

A display of Highland Dancing was given by Jamie Kitz, Annelise Moore and Jennifer Shoemaker followed by ballroom dancing.

1989's brightest stars

By Jim Johnson

AS AMERICAN and Japanese manufacturers focus on the luxury sports market, Europeans are forging for upmarket exclusivity to maintain their identity. Overviews and changes for the luxury—performance contenders in 1989 are:

1989 ACURA Legend Sedan LS

Continued improvement just in time to counter Nissan's Infiniti and Toyota's Lexus. Legend: Refined to include a standard driver's side air bag on all models, redesigned front and rear exterior and the addition of double-wishbone rear suspension for the Legend Sedan.

Integra: Essentially unchanged until mid-year.

1989 Audi 100E

Evolution of a complete model change continues.

100/200: Redesigned luxurious interior. Minor mechanical changes. 3.6 liter 250 hp V8 by late fall.

80/90: Unchanged for 1989. Later look for a 20-valve 90 Quattro.

1989 BMW 535i

On a roll with advanced new products. New 5 series follows 7's impressive lead at accessible price.

525i/535i: Down-scaled 7-series with refinements. Great expectations.

700 series: Unchanged. Long wheel base, six-cylinder 735iL joined 735i and 750iL late in 1988.

300 series: Price holding keeps BMW in the $25K plus range.

1989 XJ-S Convertible

Holding prices on sedans and XJ-S convertibles for growth.

XJ-S: ABS and other improvements introduced this summer. New XJ-S V12 convertible now available.

XJ-6: New in early 1989.

1989 Mercedes-Benz 300E

Awaiting near-term prospects of new products while aligning sites on BMW.

190D and 190E: Minor sheet metal work gives 300 appearance. 2.5 liter diesel and 2.6 liter gasoline engines are standard in 190D and 190E.

260/300E: Sedans have passenger side air bag option.

S Class: Standard passenger side air bag.

Nissans

Number one in prototype racing should reflect in passenger car sales.

240 SX: All new 2 plus 2 front engine RWD, 140 hp 12-valve sports car.

Maxima: All new V6 Sedan.

Sentra: 90 hp, 1.6 liter 12-valve four.

1989 Porsche 911 Carrera Cabriolet

Power and performance upgrades across the line.

944: New 944S2 with 3.0-liter engine will replace the S; 247-hp Turbo and the long awaited 944S2 Cabriolet. Standard 944 has 2.7-liter and 163-hp engine.

911 Carrera 4: All wheel drive will debut this spring with a new platform, suspension and larger 247-hp, 3.5-liter engine.

928S4: No changes.

Speedster: Due in March.

965: This year?

1989 Saab 9000 Turbo CD

Extra wheel base should help 9000 Turbo CDs compete in the mid-priced luxury market.

9000CD: Six inches longer than 9000 Turbo. Clear coat paint and automatic transmission are only options.

900: Gets improved 16-valve 128-hp engine.

900 Turbo: 4-door sedan returns.

1989 Volvo 740 GLE—16 Valve

Holding prices at '88 levels for 1989.

740: Less expensive 2.3-liter 240 engine for the newer 740 "GL" body. Competitive

153-hp twin cam, 16-valve engine for GLE.

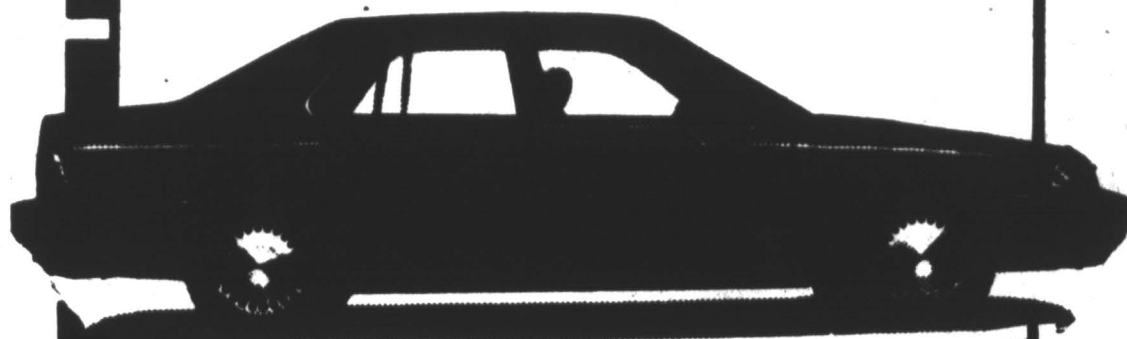

780: 170-hp Turbo engine for Bertone coupe.

BUSINESS BEAT

By David Leland

Let me entertain you

AFTER SPENDING the last 18 years ensconced in Pacific Grove, bandleader and musician extraordinaire Nick Williams is moving his entertainment business to Carmel Valley.

Citing the advantages of a "centralized" business community at the mouth of the valley and an excellent tenant/landlord relationship, Williams has dropped the name "Foghorn Music" and now calls his business Nick Williams' Music.

Now a Pebble Beach resident, Williams grew up in downtown PG, where he learned to play 18 different instruments, including all of the woodwinds, keyboards and bass fiddle.

Music students, party throwers (weddings, private gatherings and corporated-to-dos) and people desiring Singing Musicgrams can reach Williams at 375-0808 or visit his new, state-of-the-art location at 26555 Carmel Rancho Blvd.

Pretty hot stuff...The Carmel City Council has recognized Anton & Michel Restaurant owner Anton Salameh, whose eatery was selected as the "Peninsula's Best" by the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce.

Salameh was nominated by his peers during "Small Business Week" last May, which was sponsored by the Small Business Administration and was honored by the chamber on May 12.

More tees, please...A new, invitational pro-am golf tournament, to be hosted by former PGA Player of the Year Dave Marr, has been scheduled for early next year.

To be called "The Pebble Beach Pro-Am," the informal tournament will be primarily for club professionals and their amateur guests.

Scheduled for Feb. 5-9, the 54-hole, stroke play tournament will be played on a rotation basis at Pebble Beach Golf Links, Spyglass Hill Golf Course and The Links at Spanish Bay.

"It's a new and different tournament," says Marr. "It's a tournament and a party with the thrust toward the club pro. Its main purpose is to let people know what a great place Pebble Beach is for golf."

Marr, who is Pebble Beach Co.'s director of corporate development, as well as color commentator for ABC television golf coverage, said invitations are going out to club professionals nationwide. He will be a non-playing host.

The format of the event is to pair one club professional with three amateur partners. There are no cash prizes, although the winning team will receive awards. The number of teams will be limited to accommodate play on the three courses.

The eyes have it...Filling a void on the Central Coast, Emma Tropa Optical Boutique now specializes in personalized eye-glass frames.

"We have eyewear to enhance the uniqueness of each person," boasts owner Dr. Theresa De Barros, well-known peninsula ophthalmologist. "We don't want people to look like anyone else."

Before her store opened, De Barros says that when people wanted the latest in fashionable frames they had to either travel to Los Angeles or San Francisco in their quest.

"A lot of people say exclusive, but we mean exclusive," she says, adding that most times the boutique will generate 24-hour service.

And while Optical Boutique provides eye examinations as well as framing, De Barros says she works closely with the prescribing eye doctor.

Emma Tropa Optical Boutique is located at 26388 Carmel Rancho Lane.

Auto shop anyone?The Carmel Unified School District has been named the recipient of one of seven Nissan engines donated by Monterey Nissan Subaru and Nissan Motor Corp.

The engine will be used in the automotive technology department as a "hands-on" training tool in the classroom.

The two companies have donated five new Nissans during 1988, totalling donations of more than $35,000.

Congratulations are in order...Carmel's La Playa Hotel was recently selected as a member of Relais & Chateaux, a worldwide organization of independently owned country inns, castle hotels and intimate resorts.

The prestigious French group tapped the historic 75-room resort as one of only two U.S. properties added to its roster this year. Internationally, only 13 properties were granted membership.

La Playa's selection was based on passing the organization's "five Cs" — character, charm, courtesy, cuisine and calm — and was judged by anonymous inspectors.

In order to maintain its high standards, Relais & Chateaux members are subject to ongoing, anonymous inspections. Founded in 1954, Relais & Chateaux has 375 member establishments.

Welcome aboard...Rick Lawrance has been named executive vice president of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce in an announcement by chamber president Sherrie McCullough.

Lawrance has spent more than a dozen years in the tourism industry serving as director of tourism for the state of California, as executive director of the Buena Park Visitor and Convention Bureau, and as director of Tour Development for the San Francisco Convention and Visitor Bureau. He has extensive experience in local, regional, national, and international tourism development.

Most recently self-employed, Lawrance worked as a marketing consultant. Prior to that, he served as deputy director of the Santa Clara County Transportation Agency. During his tenure there, he received more than two dozen awards for marketing creativity and success.

Lawrance also served as vice president of Coastal Securities Corp. in Los Angeles and owned his own travel representation sales and marketing company, Rick Lawrance and Associates, Inc. in Beverly Hills.

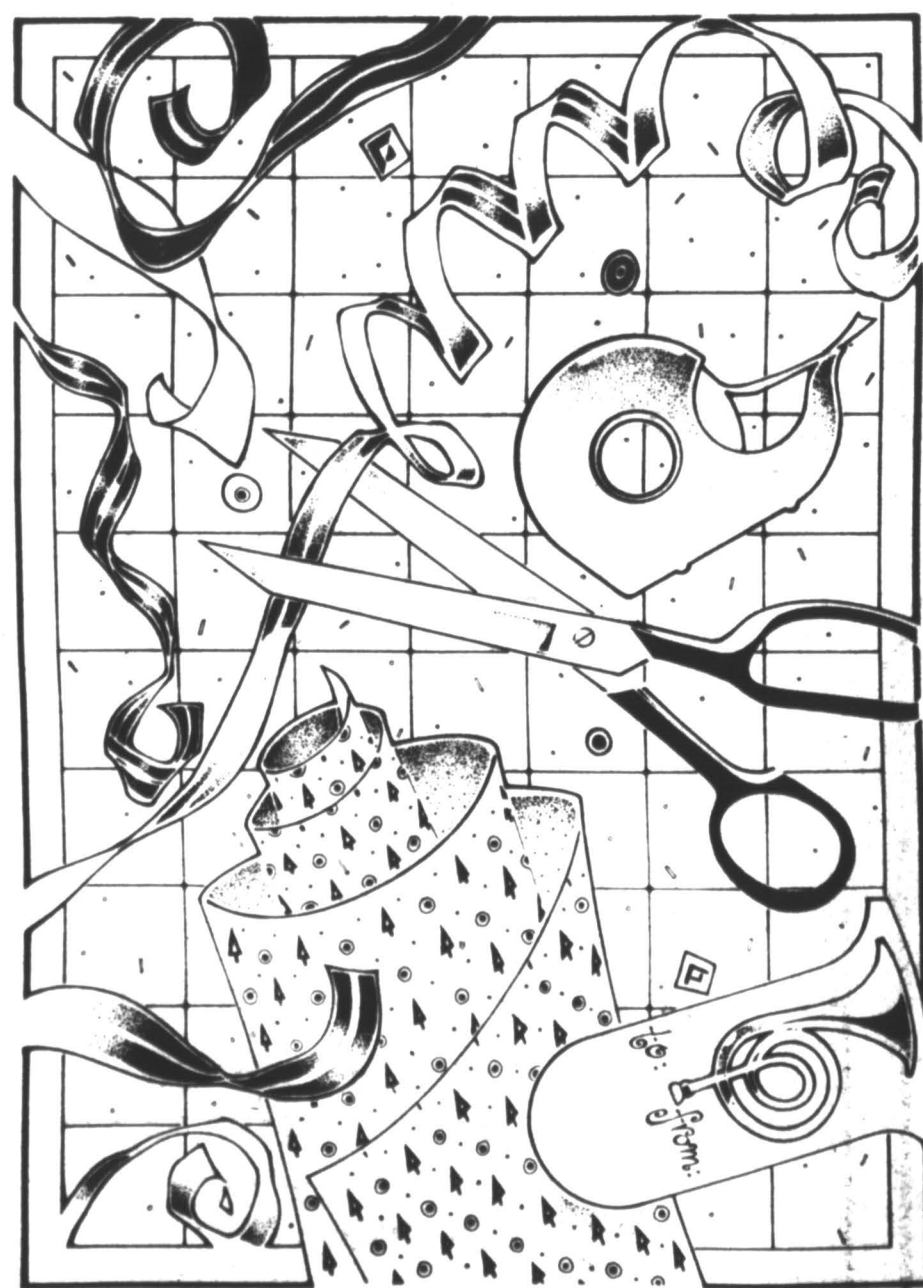

A graduate of Rider College in Trenton, N.J., Lawrance has done graduate work in public administration at the University of Maryland, and in finance at University of California in Los Angeles. He is a member of Rotary International.

Lawrance replaces Joan Duren Pease who resigned from the chamber in August for health reasons.

Almost better than Santa...Carmel has its own way of knowing the season for giving and goodness is upon us, and that's Marjorie Fontana's annual scarf and walking stick sale.

This year, the money will go to the Digit Fund (for the mountain gorillas) and the wolves — both sorely misunderstood and misrepresented animals in danger of extinction.

Fontana knits the mufflers and finds and smooths the walking sticks herself. You can find Fontana on Dec. 5 (weather permitting) next to the United Nations Association Gift Store on Dolores Street near Fifth Avenue and the Carmel Post Office. If it rains, look for her the next non-rainy day. Get there early, because she sells out quickly.

DRUGS IN THE WORKPLACE SERIES SET FOR NOV. 30

On Wednesday, Nov. 30, Community Human Services Project will present the final presentation in the "Drugs in the Workplace" series. Alcohol continues to be the most common drug addiction problem in America; this disease affects more than 10 percent of all American adults. Each year billions of dollars are lost through absences, accidents, medical costs and productivity losses.

This series of drug-related issues is designed to assist the business and employer community effectively respond to the continuing problems of drugs and alcohol on the job, develop sound employee practices (Employee Assistance Plans), as well as understand the long term effects of substance abuse on productivity, retention, safety and employee morale.

The presentation will be in the Ironwood Room of the DoubleTree, beginning with a continental breakfast at 7:30 a.m., discussion with question-and-answer period from 8 to 9 a.m. Call Kathleen Baker, Community Human Services, 373-3641 for space reservations. Tickets are $12 in advance or $15 at the door.

Seniors program needs participants

Carmel Police Department's "Seniors Helping Seniors" program has need for two types of seniors: those who would like to help and those who desire help.

According to Cathy Dampier, desk officer, there are seniors who are looking for some type of community involvement to donate their time and others who are lonely, "shut-ins," or are "at-risk" due to medical or physical reasons and desire contact with someone who cares about their welfare.

Under the program, senior volunteers call participants of the program by telephone from the Carmel Police Department. If for some reason the recipient doesn't answer the phone, the volunteer alerts the police dispatcher and a patrol unit is sent to check on the participant's welfare. To be effective, calls are made at about the same time every day, Dampier said, but the seniors aren't restricted to their homes. If they plan to be gone, they merely notify the police department in advance.

In addition to the daily phone calls, home visitations, tea parties, and luncheons are also scheduled to "further enhance and improve the quality of our contacts" with those who are shut-ins or at-risk, Dampier said.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer or a recipient of the "Seniors Helping Seniors" program is encouraged to call the Carmel Police Department at 624-6403.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

The difference between happy, tragic marriage

Carmel Pine Cone
 Dec. 7, 1978

Help us, O Lord, to become more aware of thy loving design so that we may be more willing to spend our lives in service to others. One way we can serve mankind, as they say in Ireland, is hold our whist or guard our tongues.

Some men are like an old shoe—all worn out except for the tongue. Look at the whale, the only time he gets harpooned is when he comes up to spout.

A wise old man celebrating 50 years of marital bliss confessed that the difference between a happy and a tragic marriage consists in being able to leave three or four things unsaid.

Finally, O Lord, help us to realize that the man who talks by the yard as he thinks by the inch, should be kicked by the foot.

Seventy-three-year-old Edna Schroeder took public transportation to her job in downtown St. Louis for 55 years without missing a day or arriving late. When she retired, the bus company gave her a lifetime pass.

University of Pennsylvania researchers Aaron Katcher, M.D., and Ericka Friedmann, Ph.D., have discovered that people with pets live longer after a heart attack than those without. Further studies have revealed a link between lower blood pressure and pet ownership. One study showed that subjects could lower their blood pressure temporarily by merely gazing into a fish aquarium.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Literary whirlwind

AFTER A whirlwind weekend the Third Annual Writers' Jamboree pulled up its literary tent stakes and packed everything away, secure in the knowledge that there would be a fourth annual event.

Writers, editors, publishers, agents and even non-writers participated in the two-day extravaganza, some even managed to make it to Sunday's workshops at The Barnyard after a night of revelry at the Monterey Plaza Hotel. In only its third year the event — Jambo to those battle-scarred veterans — has grown exponentially to become the literary event on the Monterey Peninsula.

The various seminars and workshops (eight all told), were well attended and a gold mine of information for writers and would-be writers. Entertaining as well. "Writing for Love and Money 102 — California Market," featuring top editors from three California magazines and a book publisher, was especially constructive and enlightening, as was "How to Get Happily, Successfully Published." The latter included a fascinating look behind the scenes at a major book publishing firm by David Stanford, a senior editor at Viking/Penguin Publishers. Stanford's account of what he actually does in those ivory-and-glass towers of book publishing in New York City was hip, breezy and informative, putting a human face on what — for writers — can be an intimidating and unseen presence.

There was even a bit of controversy at the very first seminar of the weekend, "Writing for Love and Money 101 — Central Coast Market," featuring editors from five peninsula publications (including the Carmel Pine Cone).

Sparks flew briefly when Monterey Life magazine encountered local members of the National Writers' Union, who are upset at the treatment (or should I say mistreatment?) of local writers, and in this particular case, writers who have been previously published in the magazine.

At the center of the controversy is a special edition Monterey Life intends to publish in January, "The Best of Monterey Life," an anthology of past stories. Writers of those articles have been told they would be paid $25 for their stories to be reprinted — "as a courtesy."

What the magazine failed to reveal to writers is that this is not merely another issue of the magazine, but a hardbound book that will sell for $10.95 and be distributed at newsstands and in hotel and motel rooms all over the Central Coast.

With that in mind, a member of the NWU asked the panel "If a writer does not specify what rights he or she is willing to sell to your publication, what rights under copyright law do you purchase?" Four out of five editors said, "First North American Serial Rights," an industrywide standard. The fifth took the Fifth and refused to answer. That would be Monterey Life.

Meanwhile a writer allegedly wronged by the magazine jumped up and queried the beleaguered editor about a fictional piece that he claimed was ruined by the publication. The editor said it was a personal matter between the magazine and the writer and that she didn't wish to discuss it. That brought in two seminar participants who felt the line of questioning was out of line and wished to proceed. Since the editor wasn't answering anyway, it seemed logical to go on.

There was a fine line being walked by all at that particular seminar. While I agree with and support the aims of the writers' union, I'm not sure if it was the proper place to discuss the controversy. The issue is complex and significant, so much so that you could have had a two-hour seminar on writers' rights alone. And since the editor was stonewalling the union, the discussion never got anywhere. For a free discussion of ideas to take place on a controversial issue there to have been at least two sides willing to participate.

It is, however, an issue that won't soon go away, no matter how hard Monterey Life wishes it would.

So there you have it, a lot of fun, a lot of creative spirit, a lot of information and a little controversy. Long live the Jambo!

Old World artisans contribute to new book, recording

By ANNE PAPINEAU

INSPIRED BY their experiences on two continents, Serah and Chet Stewart breathed life into an artistic project that almost defies description.

Flight of the Stork is both high quality book and a collection of original, recorded music, designed to be enjoyed as a whole. The Stewarts now make their home in Carmel, but Flight of the Stork grew out of the couple's time spent in Kenya and Europe, and involves artists from several countries.

"We were living in Massachusetts when we went to Kenya in 1983," recalled Chet, whose record of New Age music, Indian Summer, received notable airplay here and in Europe. "It was more of a journey for our soul than our art. We spent a very enriching year there. We worked with different aid organizations to find homes for children displaced by the drought in the Turkana Desert of northwest Kenya."

The Stewarts travelled with their two children because "we thought it would be meaningful to expose them to the needs of people in Third World countries," Chet added.

Their year concluded and with "all our goals reached," the Stewarts migrated to a vividly different setting, a 16th century home nestled within a storybook village in Alsace, France, bordering on the Rhine River.

"We went to France to try to learn from the resources of the Old World," Serah explained.

"The village is so adorable with its half-timbered houses and cobblestone streets," observed Chet. "Built onto the chimneys is an iron framework designed to serve as nests for the storks from the Rhine River. There used to be storks on every house, but their habitat was destroyed by the Rhine Canal, so now they're an endangered species."

The Stewarts were inspired by the migratory birds. Serah began to compose the series of songs that would grow into Flight of the Stork, and Chet worked on the illustrations.

"It is based on the theme of flight — the stork's journey to Africa. The stork sees the beauty of all the cultures in its journey from Europe to Africa."

The couple found inspiration in the illuminated manuscripts produced in Europe before the age of printing.

C.H. "Chet" Stewart designed the book and its illustrations and Serah Stewart composed the songs that make up Flight of the Stork. The Carmel residents developed the project during a three year stay in France. The music was recorded in Germany, arranged by German guitarist and composer Friedemann Witecka.

"Those old books had illuminations, and we revived this art for each of the 10 songs," noted Serah. "We received much design inspiration from these old books. Some had a hidden spot where people kept treasures — a 'secret chamber.'"

Flight of the Stork also possesses a secret chamber, which holds the cassette (or compact disc), of Serah's music.

"My past was mostly in watercolor painting," Chet explained. "This book contains aquatint etchings. This medium blends the themes we were dealing with in Africa and Europe. For example, there are images of Africa filled with earthtones and spontaneity. And the cover of the book has a castle very much like those in Alsace."

New York artist Lisbeth Hamlin worked with Chet on these aquatint etchings painted with watercolor.

According to Serah, she devoted "a good two years" to creating the music for Flight of the Stork. In addition to composing its 10 songs, she also selected the musicians and searched for the right studio in which to record.

"I wouldn't call our music New Age, but some people put it there. I think it's between classical, New Age and folk," Serah maintained.

The music, like all aspects of their effort, represents a blending of styles and media.

German guitarist and composer Friedemann Witecka arranged and produced the music. It was recorded digitally at Ton Studio Bauer in Stuttgart, West Germany.

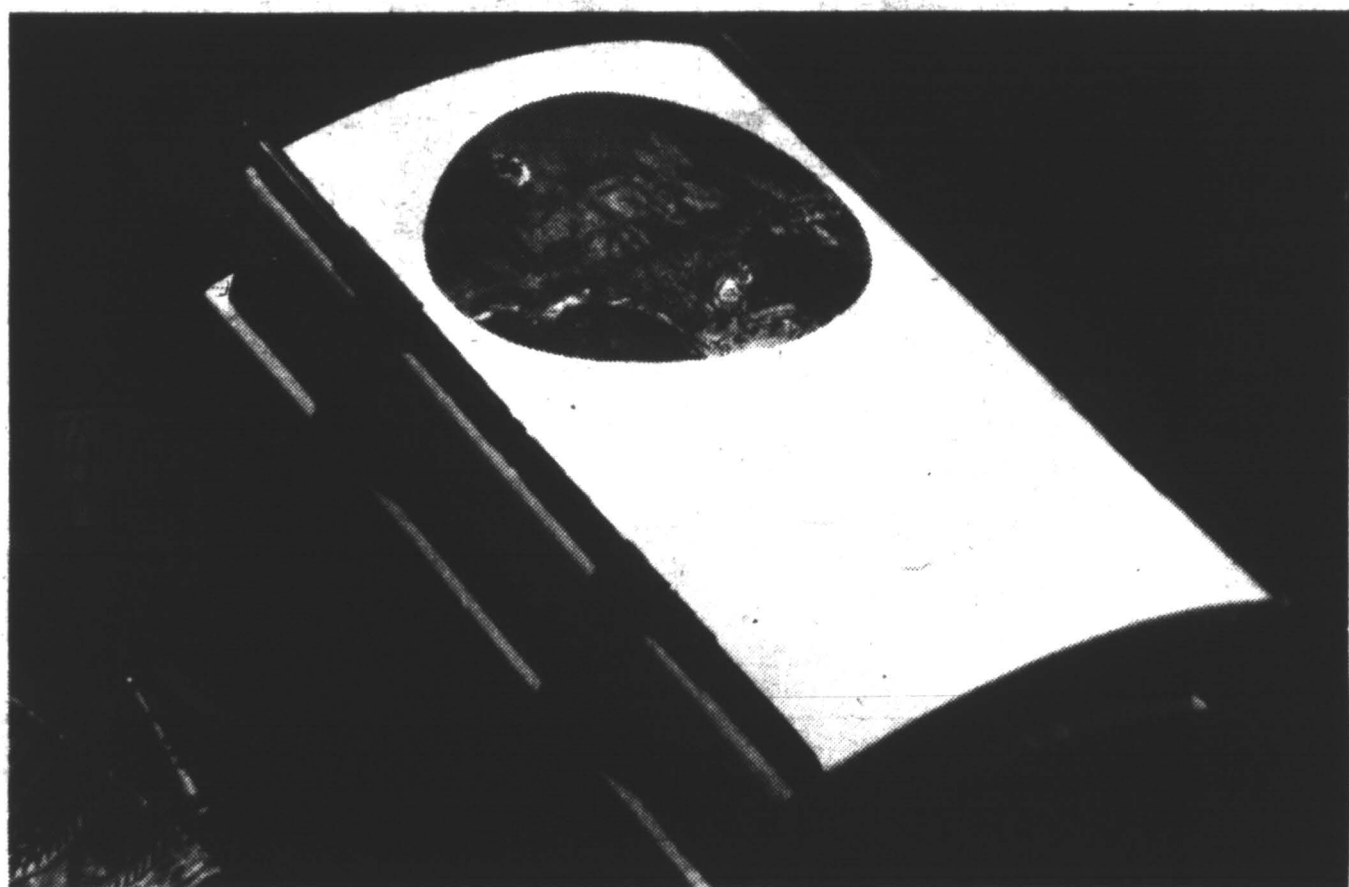

Contributing to the international flavor of the project was the actual binding of the text.

ARTS & LEISURE

Chet designed the book and box — the conceptual sense of how Flight of the Stork should be presented.

"All books are flat, but this book isn't. It's shaped like an arc, but we're not going to

A UNIQUE arc shape distinguishes the book of Flight of the Stork. It was printed by Paul Kristensen, printer to the Royal Danish

Court, and hand bound by Ole Olsen. A compact disc or cassette of Serah Stewart's music accompanies the text.

ART NOTES

Show and sell

MOST ARTISTS desire to show and to sell their work. The function of the gallery in our society is to display painting, drawing, and sculpture, not just to intrigue the eye, but, indeed, to persuade the public to buy; the museum wants to adorn their walls with work that is chosen for aesthetic value. Museums do want to sell, but there are not salesmen out on the floor. The Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History recently had an exhibit of the oil paintings of Albert De Rome, and sold many of them. This is perhaps indicative of the fact that work of that time is being collected. He died in or around 1957.

This same museum is hosting its 23rd Annual Watercolor Competitive. This is a show which is very well balanced. I liked No. 56, "Pots and Posies" by Dorothy Bigger for delicacy and design of the space. Terry Baker is represented by his "Shadow Series No. 2," and by "Palm Series No. 3." I find his use of hot and cold color very effective, but lacking in content.

"Carmel Beach" by Edwin Adamson is a small, very crisp watercolor. Olof Dahlstrand is showing "Cedar Breaks, Utah." As an artist, he is getting away from his training as an architect. Phillip Smith has evolved. His "The Bird Seller of Cinnebar" is a complex painting, but the subject matter stays on the picture plane. Not so in "Red Hot and Blue" by Marie Brumund as those peppers are unrestrained.

For personal imagery I liked "Eat, Drink and Be Merry" by Lucia Manley. Her color is unusual. Virginia Conroy is always concerned with the use of space as shown in her "N.J. Taylor, Surrealist." An artist whose abstraction has a strong visual impact is Carolyn Berry with "Jesus Christ the Apple Tree." Another person with strong abstract design is Renee Grignard Eaton with "Opaline Vase," and "Joan." "Sky Man" by Joan Savo is really floating.

It is hard to write about an exhibit in which there are no discernible trends. I think the juror, Robert Bechtle, did a remarkable job, but as his own entry, "Albany Malibu," seems lacking in content I can only assume the value is satiric. What he is interested in is a depiction of banality. In this he is successful. It is also dull.

In a showing of bronze and mixed media sculpture entitled "The Existential Alice," Eleen Auvil presents a theme which is beautifully realized. On entering the room you find Alice going through the looking glass into a world all her own. Robert Campbell wrote the poems which accompany the sculpture. There are all sorts of creatures made out of paper and cloth stretched over wire. You will encounter a Cheshire Cat, also "My Blue Duchess with a Touch of Glass," "I Shall Be Alice Until I Perhaps Become Dorothy," and "Mock Turtleman Will Have No Zope." One creation is flying overhead and is named "The Whole Trip." This is a world of magic originating in the mind of the writer, Lewis Carroll. There are birds cast in bronze called "Borogroves." They have long legs and bills which help them to discover and eat glyphs. Of all the bronzes I think that I like "Brassy Cat" the best, he is so homely and spunky. Do not miss this show. It is far removed from the worlds of representational, pop, or abstract art, and will be on exhibit through Dec. 7.

AT THE FOREST HILL Manor in Pacific Grove, there is the Vest Pocket Gallery which is featuring a one-woman show of the watercolors of Helen Traeger. There are no titles listed so I will go by numbers. I know that this lady has had trouble with her eyes, but her painting is good. No. 10 is concerned with houses and roofs, and the hills of Carmel Valley. The darks and lights work very well in this one. No. 11 has as subject matter rocks and sea. The illusion of wave motion is good, and the water looks liquid. No. 6 is a still life with excellent use of hot and cold color. No. 4 is quite abstract but I know that it was painted at the Carmel Lagoon. No. 9 is a study of flower pots and their plants, and has excellent shapes, the color builds form. What Helen Traeger is working for is her own unique Form.

THE CITY OFFICES of Seaside are housed in attractive buildings surrounded by pleasantly landscaped grounds. In Carmel the land has been too valuable to allow any such spacious civic center. Seaside also does more to encourage the art of painting, drawing, and sculpture, than any other peninsula community. In their City Hall the 1988 Seaside Competitive Art Exhibit adorns the walls. It is an interesting show in that there are artists whose work is not seen very often.

Renee McClue (hope I have not missed an "r") offers "Room With a View." This is a neo-photographic painting. "Nita" is a watercolor by Anita De Carlo. She achieves form through the use of overlapping glazes. "Life-Danse of Illusion" is a mystic's painting, very subtly done. I like John La Pierre's "Approaching Storm." This is a collage, and he knows how to develop space through the placement of lights and darks, and warm and cool color.

Renee Eaton is represented by "Eidolon" which is an abstract watercolor with subtle gradations of color which are enlivened by some strong and effective darks. "Docking Late Sunset" by Andres Morillo is a small watercolor. It is quite representational which makes a good contrast with other pieces in the show. I am not sure of the medium Jim Casteel uses in "Landscape," but he has developed an interesting form in which lurks a face. "Jazz Band" by Barbara Johnson is a very sophisticated graphic. The shapes are intricate, but hold well to the surface. She also shows an oil, "Coastal Zone," which is beautiful in its relation of abstract areas. Often when I see an Ellwood Graham oil, it seems completely abstract at first view, but the subject matter is always there, as in his "Waterbirds."

The attitude of galleries is often puzzling. I realize that there are an enormous number of artists who want to show their work, but it is sometimes difficult to get the people who run galleries to look at new work because the artist has to have an established reputation. It has become a very formal procedure in many cases. This is a cavalier attitude because it is the gallery who is living off the artist. It is a symbiotic relationship.

It is, I believe, much more difficult, at least in big cities, to get the gallery to take a look than it was, say, 10 years ago. I remember going into the Wally F galleries in Beverly Hills many moons ago. It is one city with alleys. A nice lady said they would be happy to see my painting. So I went to my car, which was in back, and brought in a couple of watercolors. She leaned them against the wall. They did not want to show me, but I did have the momentary pleasure of being in the company of about $3 million worth of French Impressionism.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Inspired gratitude

THANKSGIVING DAY. The art form that inspires gratitude thus proves its vitality. I find myself nodding thankfully in these vibrant, jazz-related directions:

—The commitment and concomitant competence of our young players and their instructors. I once asked teenage trumpeter Danny Marks why he invests all that time, energy, hope. Danny looked at me as if I were stone crazy. "It's what I do."

—Monterey Jazz Festival Education Committee and Youth Music. See above. The good and tough Ruth Fenton's a prime mover for both.

—The intelligence and staying power of local jazz buffs. New faces show up gradually at significant live dates. Bookers couldn't take chances without the support system of hip old-timers who'll shell out a few bucks to see and hear worthwhile things.

—Friendships generated by The Scene. You know who you are and how it is between us.

—The great sanity and unerring eye of jazz photographer Will Wallace. Will enriches events simply by showing up.

—Other jazz writers. It's great fun to be kept on one's toes by colleagues like Bill Minor, Johnny Adams, Jesse Hamlin, Patricia Willard, Phil Elwood, Grover Sales, Royal Stokes, Herb Wong. When local poet Chad Hammack works up a jazz piece, he does it right.

—The real love hereabouts for the music's giants. Since certain folks have been studying Tadd Dameron and Lady Day and Hamp Hawes over the decades, casual conversations can turn into learning experiences. You bet.

—Copy editor Anne Papineau's good taste and way with details as she handles this column each week. One of the planet's hundred wittiest women. Publisher Bill Brown. The typesetters and proofreaders. Advertisers who help it all occur.

—The tenacity of Monterey Bay Club's Teri Waros when she pursues selected bookings. This week's magical sets by Dave Frishberg and Mose Allison happened here because she cares. And check out the attitude of Sheraton Food and Beverage Director Dennis Castleman. "I like it when Teri refers to the Bay Club as her room. That's the kind of leadership we need."

—Jazz radio outlets that go on fighting the good fight. KRML now has me doing the very show I envisioned as a rowdy boy in Oakland. Pretty tracks, at night, on the Monterey Peninsula. Praises be. Jimmy Lyons, Don Barksdale and Johnny Adams were strong teachers.

—Finally, the players and vocalists themselves. Lord knows it ain't always easy as eating Thanksgiving pie. I salute your participation in jazz: this chancy and deeply valuable way of life.

ON THE AFTER-SUNDOWN circuit, Monterey Bay Club offers a fine trio Thanksgiving Night—leader Ruth Davies with her cello and acoustic bass, pianist Mark Little, Babatunde (masterful conga player).

Same venue: tenorman Terry Hanck and the Soul Rockers (11/25-26), pianist Bobby Phillips (11/27), Duo Du Jour (11/28), Jackie Coon and Ed Erickson (11/29), Jan Deneau Trio (11/30).

The next major booking at Kuumbwa Jazz Center in Santa Cruz comes a week from Monday. And the band for that night (12/5) boasts an amazing membership.

They exercise truth by calling themselves The Leaders—Chico Freeman and Arthur Blythe on reeds, trumpeter Lester Bowie, Kirk Lightsey at the piano, Cecil McBee (bass), drummer Don Moye. Each man's a bandstand honcho in his own right.

Sets at 7:30 and 9:30. Door charge of $12.50 per. Reservations: 427-2227.

Meanwhile, Monterey Planning Commission told Anthony Bindel of Monterey Brewing Company on Cannery Row to stop offering live music till a noise study has been completed. A merchant assertedly complained about noise levels there. The item's on the commission agenda of Dec. 13.

In the past, Bindel has booked acoustic jazz along with other musics. He claims no amplified sounds since early October. Row hotel man David Jones says his sguests (250 feet away from the site) have not objected.

Well, San Francisco's historic Jazz Workshop has shut down. The valuable Cotati Cabaret in Sonoma County will close at month's end (owner Ken Frankel predicts that such spots "will become showcases of high tech"). Perhaps officials can begin realizing that club administration requires courage along with common sense these times.

Finally, rumors about the Plush Room's closure have been denied by executive Howard Rosfeld. The York Hotel in San Francisco houses the famed cabaret, which books certain jazz people (Jackie and Roy, Frishberg, like that) on a regular basis.

Rosfeld says he'll bring in an independent producer—Jennifer Sanchez. She takes over very shortly (11/27). Jennifer's folks ran City Cabaret for quite some time.

THE BRILLIANT American jazz pianist Kenny Drew moved to Europe in 1961 and today remains a Copenhagen resident. New albums—two of them—show exactly how sensitive a composer he can be. Both packages deserve placement in the most selective home libraries.

For openers, Riverside has issued a Kenny Drew collection as part of its Original Jazz Classics series. The remastered sessions date back to autumntime '56 and include such worthies as Donald Byrd, Paul Chambers, Philly Joe Jones, Hank Mobley, Wilbur Ware. Trio, quartet and quintet settings.

Kenny's bright solos honor Thelonius Monk along with writing by Rodgers and Hart, Gershwin, Kern, Sonny Rollins. But the real gut-grabber here proves to be a Drew ballad—wistful without being weepy, golden, pensive, firm.

And Gazell Productions (under license from Sonet Records of Stockholm and London) has reissued a superb 1986 session by the Paris Reunion Band. We hear from these present and former expatriates: Woody Shaw, Drew, Nat Adderley, Joe Henderson, Nathan Davis, Grachan Moncur III, Jimmy Woode, Idris Muhammad.

The men cook hard, of course. Yet the most memorable cut's a Drew tune that both mourns and celebrates late drummer Kenny Clarke. In fact, For Klook (Kenny Clarke's nickname) provides the album's title.

Liner notes by jazz writer Francis Paudras, whose friendship in Paris with Bud Powell inspired the Round Midnight flick. His respectful prose demonstrates part of what Black jazz artists gain when they become European residents.

Francis nails this point cold: "The arrival of Nat Adderley (for the reunion date) is a historic event. I have always felt that Nat's great qualities tended to be overshadowed by the powerful gifts and personality of brother Julian. But, for me, Nat is one of the giants of the cornet. With his total artistic integrity and his improvisational flair, he must be classed among the purists of the bop era."

NOTEBOOK CHUNKS:

• Oakland's Troyce Key has been named Blues Club Owner of the Year by Blues Foundation of Memphis. He has Eli's Mile High Club, which maintains its own record label.

• During the Nazi occupation of Belgium, Toots Thielemans hid in a basement and absorbed jazz via Allied Armed Forces Radio. That story came out of his recent run at Yoshi's in Oakland.

• San Francisco scene. Larry Vukovich Trio will welcome special guest Pete Escovedo for a stint at Kimball's (11/25-26). Carmen McRae's coming back to Great American Music Hall (12/10).

Senior Baezes, children's writer will autograph books

Albert and Joan Baez and Randall Reinstedt are among the authors who will be signing books at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

The Thunderbird Bookshop will host a reception for Randall Reinstedt and three of his books for children on Friday, Nov. 25, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Featured will be

Reinstedt's latest book, The Strange Case of the Ghosts of the Robert Louis Stevenson House—a blend of history and locally famous tales of ghostly manifestations that teaches and entertains the reader. Also featured will be Stage Coach Santa—based on an account found in an aged scrapbook. Reinstedt combines California history and lore with his storytelling talents.

After Reinstedt's first book was published he was sought out by people of Monterey County as an individual with a genuine interest in old Monterey.

Albert and Joan Baez, the parents of popular singer Joan Baez, will be the guests of The Thunderbird Bookshop at a reception for their book A Year in Baghdad, Saturday, Nov. 26, from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m.

"In 1951, Albert Baez was asked by the United Nations to teach for a year in Iraq. Two Quaker parents and three girls spent A Year in Baghdad. It was middle-class American folkways bumping into Middle-Eastern folkways. In the end they both were learning, surviving, giving, and taking, and changing."—Review by Pete Seeger.

During this time, while Mr. Baez helped to develop a physics department and laboratory for the University the family endured many discomforts as well as great rewards. It was an important year in the development of a pacifist family.

Joan and Al wrote their contributions to this book independently. The book came together, with their daughter Joan's illustrations, to show how different family members perceived their experience in a very foreign land.

Albert Baez is a renowned educator and physicist and pioneer in the field of holography. Joan Baez, Sr. has traveled throughout the world on behalf of Friends Outside, Humanitas International and Emergency Relief Fund and is the author of "One Bowl of Porridge: Memoirs of Somalia."

Carmel Mission concert features traditional favorites

"A TREASURY of Traditional Church Favorites" will be performed Sunday, Nov. 27 at the Carmel Mission Basilica. Admission is free to the 3 p.m. concert.

Sunday's performers will include Mary Margaret Graham, soprano; Cathy Findley, contralto; James Hull, tenor; Alexander Holodiloff, bass; Anthony Lacono and Dale Victorine, duo treble recorders; Dave Dally on both trumpet and violin; and William Zeitler playing the Casavant organ.

The musical treasury will feature performances of Pan's Angelicus, Franck and Ave Maria from "Thais" by Massenet. Works of J.S. Bach scheduled to be presented include Jesus, Joy of Man's Desire, the duet Domine Deus from the Mass in G, and Sheep May Safely Graze and Pasture featuring the baroque recorders. Among the Handel works to be presented are the aria Let the Bright Seraphim with trumpet obbligato, and the duet for contralto and bass Let's Imitate Her Notes Above from the oratorio Alexander's Feast. Of special interest will be the duet Pie Jesu from Andrew Lloyd-Webber's Requiem written in 1986 and the quartet Benedictus from Mozart's Requiem.

Each of the performers has donated their services to the concert.

Mary Margaret Graham is a former member of the San Francisco Opera Company who retired and moved to Carmel. Cathy Findley received a scholarship to study Lieder in Germany with Elly Ameling. She was a first-place winner in district Metropolitan Opera Auditions. She has been soloist with several symphonies and the Carmel Bach Festival and is a graduate of the music school at USC.

James Hull received his degree in music education from Central Washington State University and has been soloist with the Monterey County Symphony and the Carmel Bach Festival. He has directed the choir at Monterey Presbyterian Church for many years. Alexander Holodiloff studied at UCLA and was a student of Semion Tregubov, professor of voice from the Moscow Conservatory of Music. He has appeared frequently on the Monterey Peninsula in oratorio concerts, opera productions, and the Carmel Bach Festival. He recently completed a concert tour in Leningrad, Moscow, Kiev, Yalta, and Helsinki.

Lacono resides in Salinas and is a self-taught musician. He plays recorder, saxophone, and guitar. He graduated from the University of Calif. at Berkeley with degrees in English and library science.

Also from Salinas is William Zeitler, organist. He has a degree in music from California Institute of the Arts in Valencia and is church organist for the Church in the Forest, Pebble Beach. Dale Victorine was born and raised in Salinas. He is a specialist in performing on all types of recorders and is a composer of music. He has published a song written on the text of the Twenty-Third Psalm. David Dally lives in Carmel Valley and leads the Monterey String Quartet. He is equally at home on other instruments including trumpet.

Limited tickets available to hear Yo-Yo Ma, Emmanuel Ax

THE CARMEL Music Society will present cellist Yo-Yo Ma and pianist Emmanuel Ax in concert on Saturday, Jan. 21, 1989 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. For information about this and other concerts in the Carmel Music Society season, call 625-9938.

THE CARMEL Music Society announces that few, if any, single tickets will be available for the Yo-Yo Ma-Emmanuel Ax concert set Saturday Jan. 21, 1989. However a limited number of tickets for the remaining five concerts are available for $75, the same price as a single ticket for Ma-Ax.

Cellist Ma and pianist Ax will perform a concert of their individual instruments as well as together as a duo. Both artists are masters of their instruments. Each regularly performs with major orchestras and plays recitals and chamber music world wide.

The Boston Globe called their performance "One of the great musical occasions of a lifetime."

The next concert in the Society's season is violinist Anne-Sophie Mutter on Saturday, Dec. 17. Few musicians in recent years have received the widespread admiration accorded this German virtuoso. In April, Time magazine stated, "Mutter's gifts include a consummate control of her instrument, gleaming intonation, ripe sound and assured, nerveless stage demeanor."

The remaining season includes the Ma-Ax duo; Neil Rutman, pianist; the Piano Competition Winner's Concert and Derek Anthony, bass.

Tickets may be reserved by calling the box office at 625-9938.

'Flight of the Stork' published

reveal our secret," quipped Chet. "In Copenhagen we came up with a solution."

The book was printed by Poul Kristensen, printer to the Royal Danish Court, and hand bound by Ole Olsen in an edition of 200. Its arc shape is symbolic of the stork's flight from Europe to Africa; the pages unfold in an unbroken sequence to suggest the stork's flight above political and cultural divisions.

"Working with Old World European craftspeople, we found that their primary concern is not money but the quality of the finished project," he added.

Their "learning challenge" behind them, the Stewarts look to new projects.

"We really like Carmel, its quietness and its beauty," Chet noted.

Serah noted, "We want to make a series of two or three music videos, hopefully a collection of songs. We hope to have the next book by a year from now."

The Stewarts will autograph copies of Flight of the Stork during a reception set 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Nov. 25 at Thunderbird for Kids in the Barnyard, Carmel.

BAY LIGHTS

An attitude of gratitude

THANKSGIVING WEEKEND, ah what a fine time on the Monterey Peninsula, we're all grateful just to be here. Whether you cook at home or take advantage of one of the many restaurant offerings, we wish you a warm, loving and delicious holiday.

The season makes us count blessings, one of which is the Fishwife Restaurant at Asilomar Beach, the kind of place you can return to again and again. It's always crowded at lunchtime, as you may have noticed, and that's a good sign. It's particularly favored by the Pebble Beach crowd and you better believe that people with money appreciate good value. Considering the high quality of the food, Fishwife prices are downright cheap.

Disregard the shrewish name of this place and just enjoy its airy, unpretentious decor and maritime menu. Owners Julio and Marie Ramirez and their executive chef Jefferson Seay have perfected a light, calorie-and sodium-conscious, healthy approach to fish. We tried the golden broiled snapper sandwich served on a soft roll (optional for weight watchers) while our companion had the daily special of blackened halibut served on a bed of generous salad fixings.

These fishy delights were satisfying and delectable while being also virtuous, sensible, and economical at $5.95, and we added a couple of glasses of house white wine because total relaxation and goodwill crept up on us unawares. The Fishwife also has a restaurant and takeout deli in Seaside, in fact that's their original location, and the food's equally good in both places...

ANOTHER REAL jewel is the Gourmet Pantry on Lighthouse in PG in the corner Victorian house across from Pasta Mia, where Judith Martin ("Miss Manners") was spotted having dinner last week. This little pantry looks for all the world like a small grocery store but it's a fantastic Greek restaurant and takeout joint. Last week Vic and Shayna Selby hosted a party of eight with trays of hummus, stuffed grape leaves and a spinach dish, plenty of hearty food for only $35 and their guests simply raved.

People have asked us not to talk about the Gourmet Pantry for fear it'll become too popular but Bay Lights understands its solemn responsibility to turn you on to great food at bargain prices when we find it...

"A DIFFERENT Flavor" is the title of a new cookbook by Fuad Bahou, chef/owner and head guru at Chutney's Gourmet Cafe in the Crossroads, and different it is, as well as vibrant, gorgeously illustrated, handsomely produced, and packed with recipes devised by the master himself.

"Recipes are whispers audible only to those who care to hear," Fuad writes, and we're all ears. Here are roadmaps to Chicken Mediterranean, Cauliflower Arabesque, Lamb Chops with Parsley Pesto, Stuffed Whole Trout, etc., etc., plus poetry, quotations, philosophy and a kind of warm outlook on life which exemplifies Bahou's genial personality.

The large paperback is $12.95 plus $2 shipping by mail from Chutney's, 230 Crossroads Blvd., Carmel 93923, or you can pick one up at the restaurant and save the postage...

ASSORTED DESSERTS: Check it out, Albert and Joan Baez, who are the parents of singer Joan Baez, will autograph their new book, A Year in Baghdad, on Saturday (Nov. 26) from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the Thunderbird bookshop in the Barnyard. The Baez family moved to Baghdad in 1951 with three small daughters and learned firsthand the ways of the Middle East. Illustrations are by famous daughter Joan...

What's this thing about oat bran anyway? There's a national hysteria for oat bran muffins—believed to lower your cholesterol, they're rich in fiber and low in calories. They can't keep them in stock in Miami and New York City. Locally best oat bran muffins are said to be from In Joy, 814 Eddy St. in San Francisco, but c'mon, there's got to be a more local source than that. Any suggestions?...

Have you noticed old time gum Beeman's, Black Jack and Clove are back on the market at 35 cents a pack? Yummm. These bring back memories of 1952 in Lawrence, Mass., when small boys chewed a bunch of Black Jack to make their teeth turn dark purple, ewwww...

HERE'S AN item to warm our hearts. The Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. has just admitted women to its sacred portals for the first time. The "Women in Baseball" exhibit honors the heroines of the old All American Girls Professional League (1943-1954). These included the Fort Wayne Daisies, Racine Belles, Muskegon Lassies and Rockford Peaches...

Holiday foods by mail are more popular every year. Cynthia Williams of Carmel Highlands has often imported that wonderful triple-cream cheddar cheese from Bandon, Ore. through her mailbox. For catalogs telling you how to order delicious specialties, write off to Gal's Seattle French Bakery, PO Box 24327, Seattle, WA 98124; Ducktrap River Fish Farm (smoked seafood), Route 2, Box 378, Lincolnville, Maine 04849; Smile Herb Shop, PO Box 989, College Park, MD 20740; Stringham and Smith Co. (brownies!), 317 SW Morrison St., Portland, OR 97204; and Joyce's Gourmet English Muffin Co., 4 Lake St., Arlington, MA 02174 and don't forget to get your party invitations out early...

Bernice Stimson of Carmel kindly answered our call for info on Korean food. She and a group of friends make regular pilgrimages over to Korean Sunset Restaurant, 2006 Sunset Drive in PG, where they share platters of chicken, pork and beef specials and of course kim chee...

BE GOOD till next week, friends, and remember who loves ya...

Ronda Road Retreat

If we were starting from scratch to name a street, we'd think "Ronda Road" an inspired choice. Especially if it turned out to look like this Ronda Road in Pebble Beach, and the houses along it were as attractive as this one.

Take Oleada to Ronda and swing in at the 4th driveway on the left. This mounts up a slight rise, brings you to a sizeable parking plaza, and delivers you to a short, geranium lined bridge that leads to the entrance. Below you is one of several patios. To your left are broad views of the forest and the ocean.

The exterior is shingles with black frames on doors and windows. The roof is steeply pitched away from you, and a long wing extends to the right.

The interior is panelled in all heart redwood. The living room rises to a cathedral ceiling with twin black beams supported by giant poles which reach to the ground. Floors are oak, there are windows all about, and a towering chimney breast that looks like slate (but is steel).

To the right is the panelled dining room, and beyond it the fascinating kitchen and family room. But wait...

Go straight ahead instead through a vaulted hall to the two main floor bedrooms. On the left is the blue bedroom, with shuttered windows facing the sea, and a satisfying bath with double sinks, triple mirrors, glassed-in tub and shower and a private commode. (We like private commodes.)

The master suite on the right is so large a queen-size bed set at an angle looks like a postage stamp. More shuttered windows and a bath-and-a-half that requires a tour guide. There are 3 sinks, white tiled floor, skylights, private shower and tub, and the ever popular private commode.

Let's go back to the kitchen. It too is panelled in redwood, has a vaulted roof, Mexican tile floor, and an intimate conversational nook at the far end. This centers about a fireplace faced with Portuguese (blue) tile, has sunken lights in its beamed ceiling, and becomes the end point of every party. The kitchen itself has every convenience, including a cleverly concealed wall barbecue and a hidden pantry. There's a protected patio just outside with colonnades, arbored top and various levels of redwood decking.

The lower level has 2 more sizeable bedrooms, a wonderful bathroom, many more closets and cabinets to supplement those upstairs, and very large storage rooms. This area deserves an ad of its own, but it will have to wait till next week. Unless it's sold in the meantime. $895,000. Oh, in the Nuts & Bolts Dept., the lot is a little over an acre. And the house is 3200 sq ft.

Cornucopia Natural Foods offers healthy holiday gifts, treats

Cornucopia Natural Foods extends its wishes for a healthy holiday season and offers a wealth of suggestions for gift giving. This health resource is newly located at 26135 Carmel Rancho Blvd. near Brinton's at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

In its 12th year, Cornucopia still leads the way in supplying the ingredients for good health. One of the hottest health trends is the use of oat bran to naturally lower cholesterol levels. At Cornucopia you will find not only the bran itself, sold in bulk, but also oat bran tablets, packaged oat bran cookies, bread, cereals, muffins and more.

In another section of the store, which is twice the size of its former location, shoppers find fresh, organic produce, delivered daily from Carmel Valley and other West Coast farms. For that holiday feast, consider hormone-free beef and chicken from Cornucopia. Your body will thank you for it.

The store also provides prepared entrees — a healthy version of "fast food." Take home fresh pasta and sauces, freshly made vegetarian soups or a dish like eggplant Parmesan.

For your holiday baking needs, don't overlook the huge selection of bulk items, including flours, grains, dried fruits and nuts.

Potential stocking stuffers can also be found in the new cosmetics section, which includes products by Zia, one of the hottest skin care lines around, the Indian Earth products as well as "caring color cosmetics" from Borlind of Germany.

Also consider the nutrition and natural healing videos that feature foremost experts in their fields. Other favorites for under the tree include gift certificates and hand-made earrings by local artists. For details, call 625-1454.

Whimsical gifts collected at Carousel of Carmel

Where does the merry-go-round enthusiast go who has everything? Why

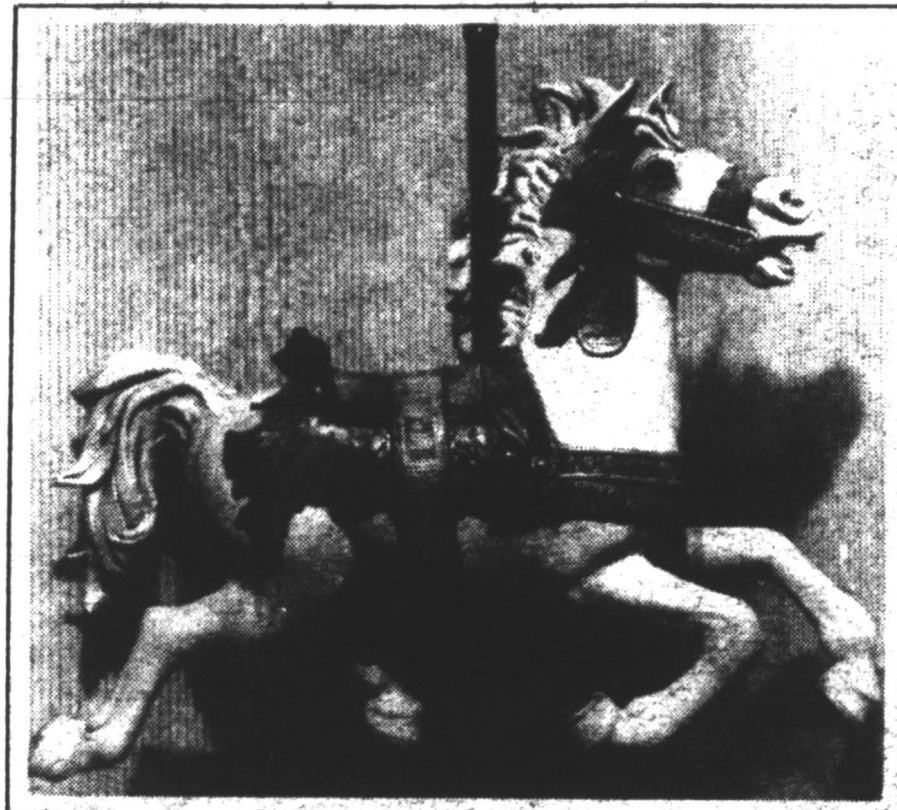

Carousel of Carmel, of course. The small, downtown

Carmel boutique offers a myriad of hand-crafted items for the collector of carousel art.

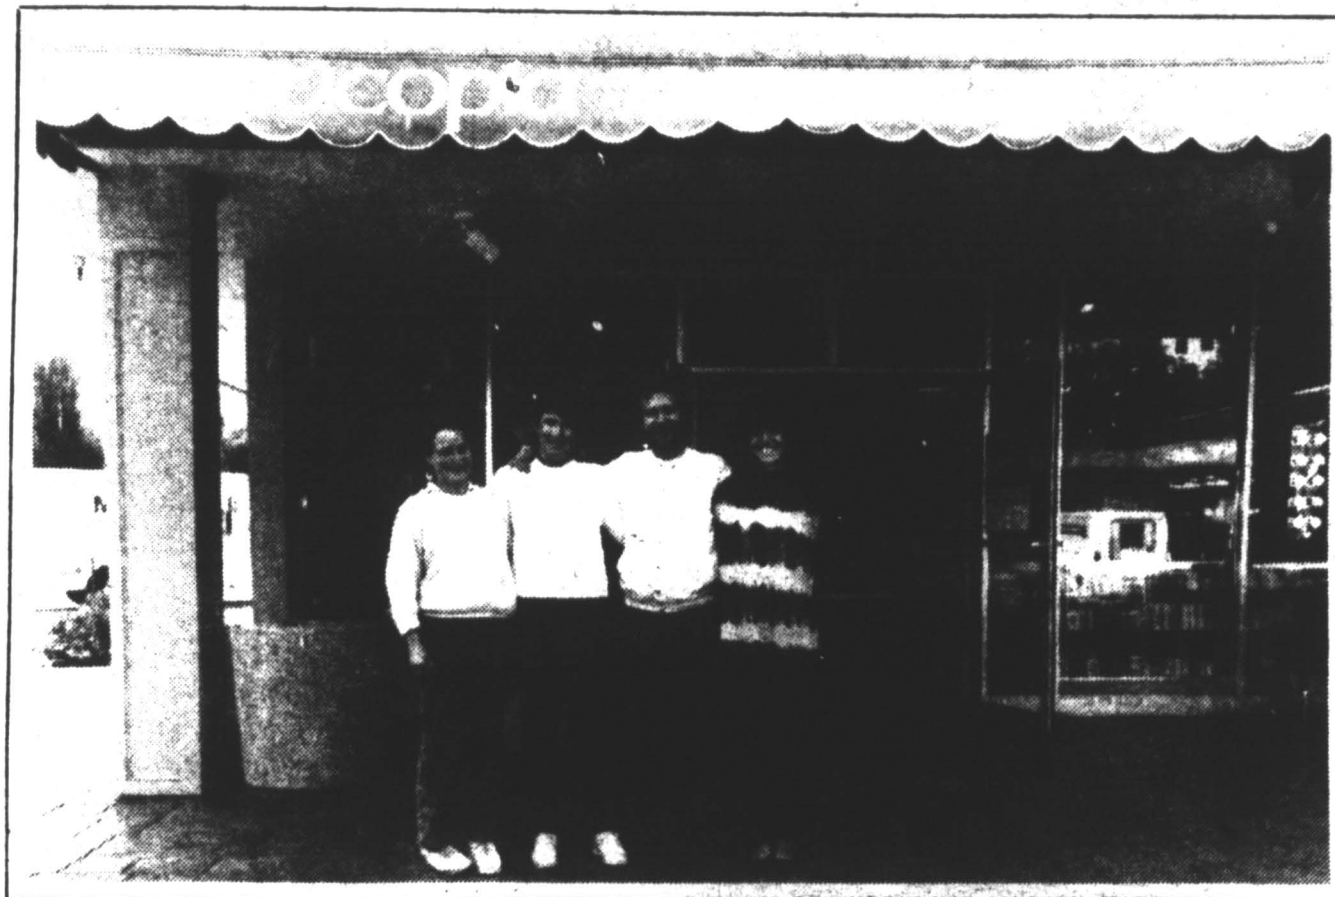

Featuring porcelain reproductions of limited edition music boxes by Tobin Fraley, Carousel of Carmel also carries original carousel artwork by Lois Carlisle and Nancy Strailui.

Other gems offered at Carousel of Carmel include hand-carved horses of all sizes, snow domes, books, calendars, gift cards and tapes of recorded carousel organ music.

Carousel of Carmel is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. The store is located on Lincoln Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. Phone: 625-5611.

NOW LOCATED on Carmel Rancho Boulevard near Brinton's at the mouth of Carmel Valley, Cornucopia Natural Foods provides an even greater selection of health-related items. Your holiday feast will be extra special if made with pesticide-free fresh produce, hormone-free meats and top quality grains. Many stocking stuffers are also available at the store. (Gregg Wutke photo).

Polish your holiday look with help of Command Performance

Command Performance certainly has some of the best-educated hair stylists on the peninsula. Thus, it is able to set and keep up with the latest trends.

Located in the Del Monte Shopping Center in Monterey, Command Performance is a full-service salon with 13 stylists able to find the right look for everyone.

"We serve women, men, grandmothers, toddlers, you name it," boasts Debbie Krause,

Krause says that every six weeks instructors from world class salons come to Command Performance and give the stylists a three-hour seminar.

"They're constantly being updated," she explains. "A lot of people think that stylists only cut hair one way — we're not like that."

The studio also employs "master stylist" Suzie and "hair artist" Danelle, who has worked there several years and is on hand to relay her knowledge to the other stylists.

This holiday season Command Performance is open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and will also be open New Year's Day. Phone 373-2729.

AN AVIATION enthusiast himself, artist Stan Stokes portrays stellar aircraft in his canvases which are sought by museums and collectors around the country. Stokes will be honored with a reception from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 26 at New Masters Gallery in downtown Carmel.

Stan Stokes' aviation art highlighted at New Masters

An exciting collection of new paintings by internationally renowned aviation artist Stan Stokes is being featured at New Masters Gallery on Sixth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Stan Stokes is the descendent of pioneers who came to California in covered wagons. His ancestors would be truly amazed by the aircraft paintings that Stan creates. Not only would the subject matter astound the early California settlers, but also the infinite detail and the magnificent three-dimensional effects that Stokes achieves in his paintings.

Stokes' rare ability to give the viewer the feeling that he or she is a part of each painting has contributed to his success. The award-winning artist's incredibly accurate depictions of vintage aircraft, which were flying before he was born, results from his hours researching the aircraft from the tires up, until he knows each nut and bolt. He is frequently seen at air shows, historic exhibits and in the company of famed aviators.

"I've had the opportunity to meet my childhood heroes: Doolittle, Yeager and Boyington."

Whether the painting is a specialized commission or for the viewing public, Stokes' love of aircraft is reflected in every piece that he creates. As Stan has frequently stated, "There's nothing I'd rather do than paint pictures of airplanes."

Stokes will be present at New Masters Gallery on Saturday, Nov. 26 during the 4 to 7 p.m. reception that marks the formal opening of his one-man show.

Elegant, body revealing evening clothes shown at Polo

For fall 1988, Ralph Lauren is in his element with evening clothes that are elegant and body-revealing.

Simple evening dresses are given a new attitude of sexiness, either long and slender in rich, fluid crepe for black tie, like the Marina and Wallis, both with a dramatic plunging back, worn with stoles of luxurious duchesse satin, or shorter, more flirty for cocktail dressing like the strap-back dress worn with the matching Claridge jacket.

An unexpected alternative to the evening dress is the Bettina jumpsuit in silk crepe cady, bare and beautifully understated. Lauren introduces silk illusion in the sheerest of blouses with hand-beaded detail at the neck. Worn over a silk camisole with breezy evening pants, the look is modern and sophisticated.

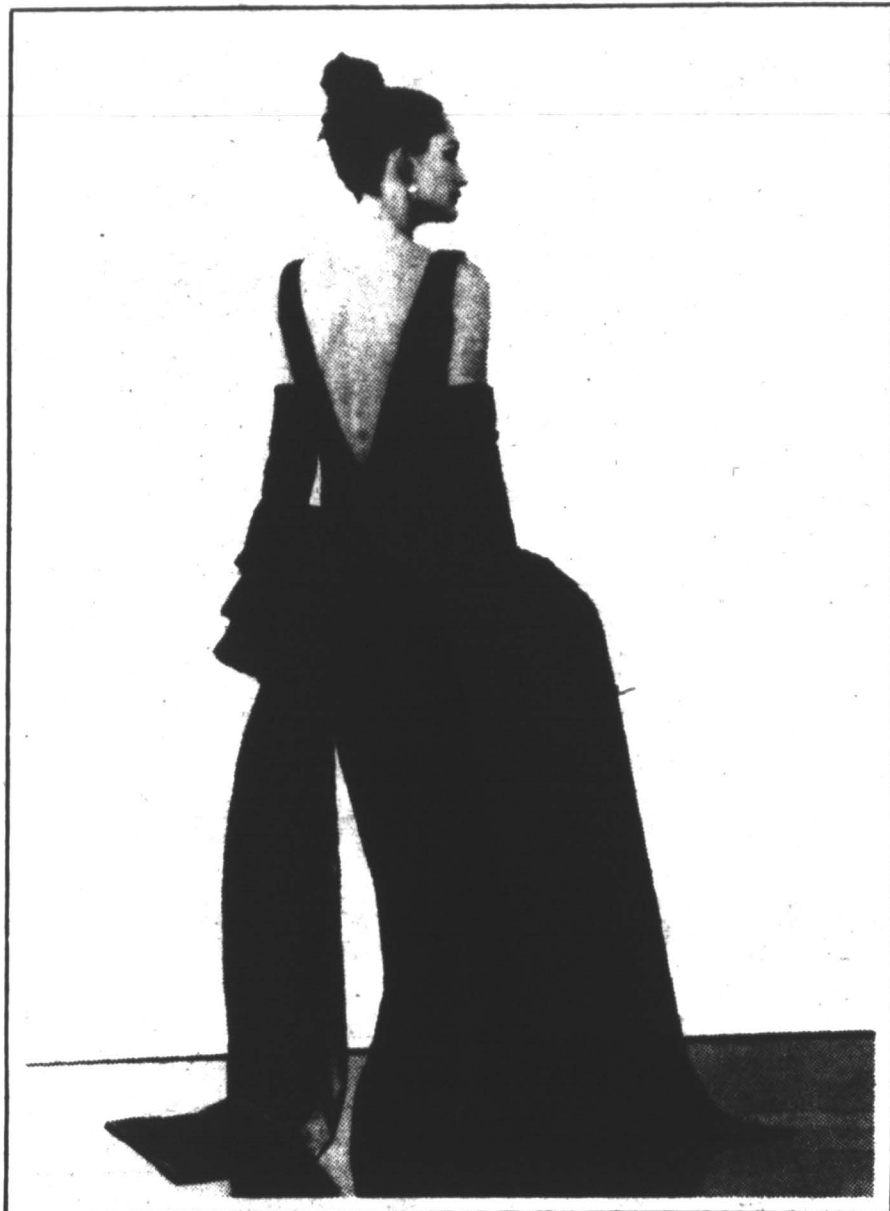

Lauren's ability to mix different fabrics translates well into evening.

The duchesse satin bustier and hand beaded Tina jacket are both spectacular and when paired with these same bottoms create stunning silhouettes which emphasize Lauren's love of a fitted close to the body top with a fuller more fluid bottom.

Bulgari earrings, black satin evenings gloves and satin heels all add an element of drama.

As always, Lauren's clothes exude a sense of lifestyle. They are clothes with a timeless grace, only to improve with each passing moment.

In Carmel, visit Polo Ralph Lauren at Sixth and Mission. The shop is open 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. 625-0562.

SPAS THAT resemble a work of art are created by Blackthorne, winner of the National Design Award. Blackthorne now maintains three stores — in Carmel Rancho Center, Carmel Valley Village and Salinas.

A Blackthorne Spa is an investment in health, pleasure

For the past 13 years, Blackthorne has been custom designing and installing portable and swim spas, plus hot tubs and pools — all in award-winning fashion.

Crafted by Locksin Thompson, who recently garnered the National Design Award, the spas resemble a work of art.

"What amazes me is the unique requests our customers can come up with," marvels Thompson. "This is a very healthy sign for my industry that we can meet these needs."

Thompson adds that a spa can also be therapeutic and he has been working closely with the National Arthritis Foundation to design spas that ease stress and pain.

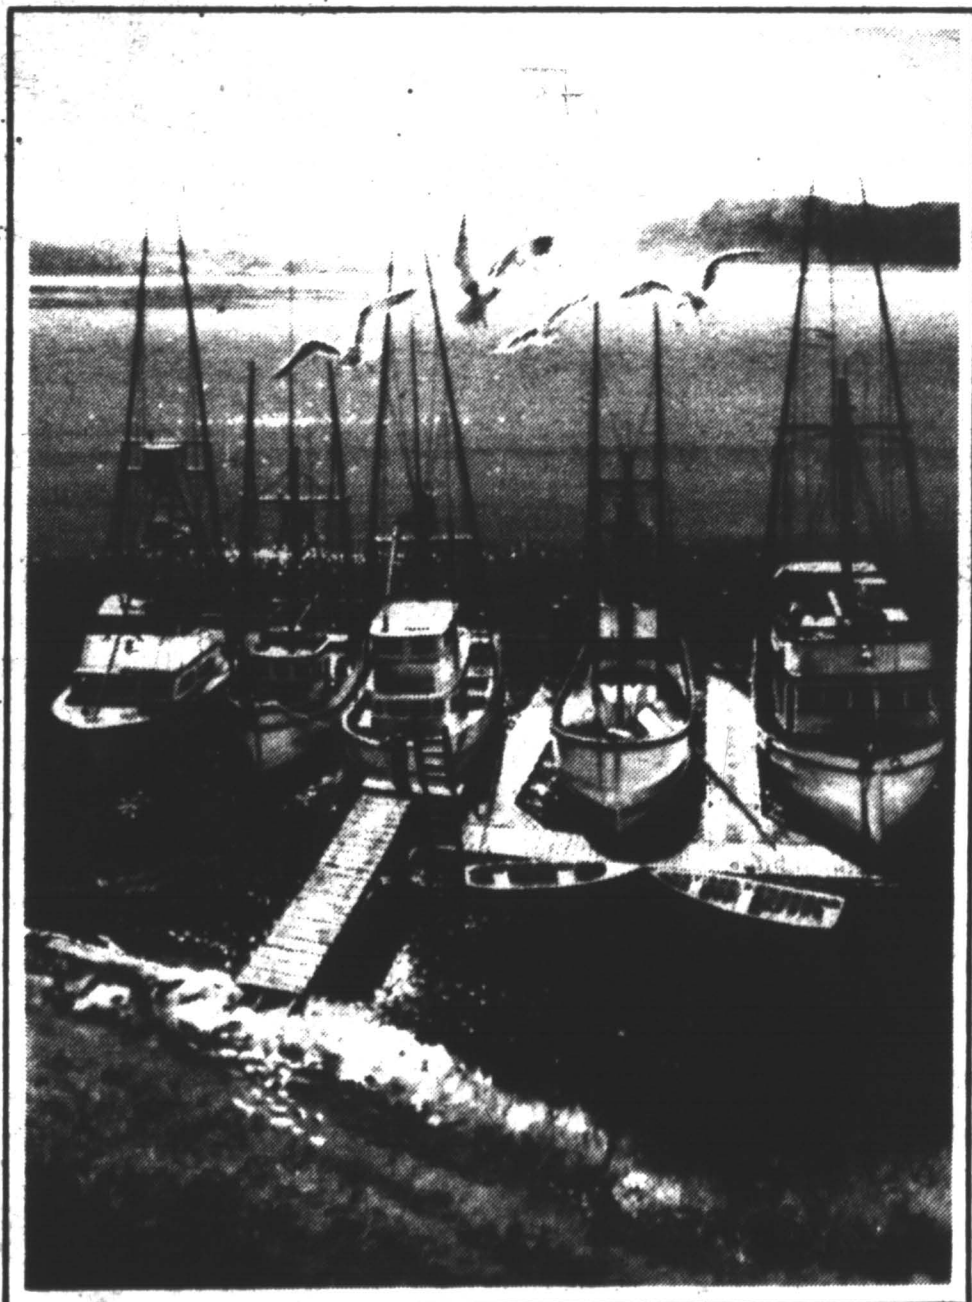

The bottom line is that spas are a relaxing prescription — whatever your requirements.

Blackthorne maintains three stores: Salinas, Carmel Rancho Center and Carmel Valley Village. Hours in the Salinas and Carmel Rancho stores are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and the village store's hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Respective phone numbers are 758-5687, 625-9521 and 659-3089.

Gepetto's two locations make holiday dreams come true

Christmas is to Gepetto's Collectibles what chestnuts are to an open fire — neither is complete without the other.

Gepetto's Collectibles, located in The Crossroads, is filled with beautiful and enchanting collectibles and gifts for adults.

Here owners Dennis Smiley and Dale Williams have successfully created an enchanting store, which also emphasizes the quality service of an era gone by.

One glance and you'll fall in love with Gepetto's antique reproduction porcelain dolls — hand-made in the Old World tradition. Each doll is intricately detailed, costumed, numbered and signed by the artist.

In addition, Gepetto's Workshop can be found in downtown Carmel, where Smiley and Williams have set up a complete toy shop in the grandest of traditions.

Including doll house miniatures, collectors' cars, imported and hand-crafted wood toys, stuffed animals, games and puzzles, Gepetto's Workshop is the only stop you'll need to make for that special toy.

Gepetto's is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Gepetto's Collectibles is located in The Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, and Gepetto's Workshop is located on Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue.

Phone numbers are, respectively, 625-6162 and 625-1468.

ENCHANTING toys for children and adults are offered in abundance at Gepetto's Collectibles. Visit the original store in the Crossroads, or Gepetto's Workshop on Dolores Street south of Ocean Avenue in downtown Carmel. (Gregg Wutke photo).

REFRESH YOUR spirit this holiday season with a visit to the Bully III in downtown Carmel. This cheery pub is the perfect spot to meet friends and enjoy a hearty meal that is also reasonably priced. The Bully III stays open until midnight Fridays and Saturdays. (Gregg Wutke photo).

Find holiday refreshment at the Bully III restaurant

Make no mistake, braving the crowds and cold weather while doing Christmas shopping can help work up a powerful thirst and appetite — that's where the Bully III comes into play.

With its recently remodeled kitchen and bar, the Bully III marks the perfect spot to take a breather and grab a quick bite to eat.

Some specialties at the Bully III include fajitas, hamburgers, fried chicken, BBQ beef and pork ribs, fish and chips and hot turkey sandwiches with mashed potatoes and cranberry sauce.

All menu items are reasonably priced.

Bully III is open from 11:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and from 11:30 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday. The pub is located at Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea. Phone 625-1750.

This Christmas season, the small, 40-year-old store also offers a dazzling array of dressy blouses, reversible mink jackets, sweaters, fox jackets and assorted gift ideas.

The Carmel Dress Shop also offers a complete selection of Ultrasuede, a man-made fabric that wears like leather, but is completely washable.

To complement its fashions, the store stocks ample jewelry made by famous names such as Christian Dior and Napier.

The Carmel Dress Shop is open from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. The store is located on Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street. Phone: 624-3389.

Pomeroy Gallery suggests the gift of fine art

"Oh, I can't pick out a painting for anyone," you say. Why not? Someone once said they might not like it and how could you possibly be right? Try it.

I am reminded of my brother and his gift from me. No one else was there when we searched the fields and dales for bottles in Oregon. Only our collie.

One day I saw it — a painting by R. Bradford Johnson and the title caught my eye, "Where We Gathered Bottles!"

It hangs before my brother's desk in his office, always reminding him of a carefree childhood, the beauty of our forest home and the sister that trailed after him. It tells him I remember happy days with him, and it tells him of my lasting love. He knows that, for he looks at it every day.

Then, those brides! How they loved the paintings of the Pascall rose. The petals almost transparent like a bride's veil, fresh, innocent and altogether beautiful.

I know it made them feel like a beautiful flower and they will keep it as something special, reminding them of beginnings. My mother's friend from Texas — she delighted in her yellow rose by the same California artist, Marjorie Sharpe.

A FINE original painting, lovingly selected at Pomeroy Gallery of Fine Arts in Carmel, makes a most memorable gift. (Gregg Wutke photo).

Something special for my doctor for his great kindness to our family. His office nurse said he liked to sail. Oh, a little (Fil) Mottola, a scene of sparkling waters with white sails. It went right on the wall with such good feelings.

Exactly right, a floral garden and house among the trees. This person had fallen in love with Plymouth, Mass. The artist said the house was in Vermont but it might well have been in Plymouth. It will always be a happy reminder of a trip to the Atlantic.

I confidently assure you that if one plans and takes a trip anywhere in the world, they will love to recall it. Carmel or Paris or San Francisco by romantic impressionist Bela Bodo can be purchased for only $450.

The slogan on the letterhead of the Pomeroy Gallery of Fine Arts in Carmel-by-the-Sea is: "Buy a painting only when you feel it was painted just for you!" You know yourself, and you know your loved ones and friends very well. You have studied them, appreciating how unique they are. Just let them see that you know.

Eminently giftable: luxurious loungewear from Josef Robe

A robe by any other name is still a robe, right? Wrong. At Josef Robe in The Crossroads, robes qualify as art.

Almost all of the designer robes are created, designed and made in San Francisco, with the company also operating a store on Pier 39.

The latest fashion gracing the store is a one-of-a-kind silk robe, hand painted by San Francisco artist Susan Sutherland, who signs each creation.

The one exception to the San Francisco-made robe is known fondly as "Turkish Sable," which is black velour and is loomed in Turkey and then manufactured in San Francisco.

Josef Robe has more than 30 different styles to choose from, ranging from the mid-thigh style to full-length robes that reach the floor.

Josef Robe is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Phone 626-1587.

COMFORTABLE ROBES, sensuous robes. Both can be discovered at Josef Robe in the Crossroads, the source for one-of-a-kind creations. (Gregg Wutke photo).
